Radio Talk By McCarthy Doesn't Call Anybody Spy

Rep. Dingell Invites Him to 'Speak Up'; Senator Makes New Attack on Lattimore

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.) yesterday let pass his second chance in two days to shed his cloak of congressional privilege in charging Owen Lattimore with Communist espionage.

In a heated radio debate on WINX's weekly "Meet Your Congress" program, Representative Dingell (D., Mich.) challenged McCarthy to "speak up now" and then declared "you can't prove your case and you know it."

Others on the program, which was transcribed Friday were Senators Brewster (R., Me.) and Green (D., R. I.).

After McCarthy on the Senate floor accused Lattimore, an expert who occasionally has advised the State Department on Far Eastern affairs, of acting as a Communist spy, Lattimore challenged him to repeat his charges publicly where he would not be protected by congressional immunity from suit. McCarthy had an opportunity to do so Saturday in a speech at Passaic, N. J., but contented himself with calling Lattimore "chief architect" of United States policy in the Far East.

Wires Acheson

As a result of the Passaic speech, Lattimore said McCarthy had "weaseled" and Undersecretary of State John E. Peurifoy declared that he "roared like a lion when he wore the cloak of congressional immunity" but "bleats like a lamb" without it.

McCarthy's reaction to Peurifoy's statement was to telegraph Secretary of State Acheson yesterday expressing surprise "that the State Department sprang to the defense" of Lattimore. His telegram, released by his office here, asked if the only "missing link" in his case wasn't proof of Lattimore's Communist Party affiliation and "that if such proof is forthcoming that then Lattimore can truly be labeled as Russia's top agent in this country?"

In yesterday's radio debate, McCarthy said Lattimore's advice to the State Department "compares almost 100 percent to the Communist Party line." When McCarthy followed this statement with a denunciation of President Truman for refusing to release FBI files on Lattimore, Dingell interrupted to denounce McCarthy's charges as "an irresponsible political smear campaign." He demanded that the Wisconsin Senator "shed his toga of Congressional immunity and tell this audience right now that Lattimore is a Communist or a spy."

Here the program dissolved into a shouting match in which all four members of Congress and Blair Moody, the moderator, took part. McCarthy finally got the microphone and said Lattimore's "ideas

Escalator Pile-Up In Penn Station Injures 7 Persons

New York, April 9 (NYHT.)—Four men and three women were injured tonight in a pile-up on a rising escalator in Pennsylvania Station.

The moving steps were crowded. One woman stumbled as she reached for her suitcase, resting on a step, to get off.

A man behind her was moved into her by the rising escalator. She fell to the floor, then he fell over her. After that passengers tumbled in the heap as fast as they arrived at the top.

Most suffered only bruises.

Summer Tour

Midshipmen To Try Out As Officers

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Four hundred Annapolis first classmen and 950 Naval ROTC midshipmen seniors will get an advance crack at being naval officers next summer.

Instead of making their summer cruise as "crew members" in large groups aboard a few of the Navy's bigger ships, as in the past, these members of the 1951 graduating class will report individually aboard many Atlantic Fleet vessels "for duty as junior officers under instruction."

In announcing this innovation, a Navy spokesman explained that the Naval Academy and college seniors "will be treated largely as young ensigns." He said they will live in officers' staterooms, eat in the wardroom mess, be assigned as junior officers to the various ship divisions and be responsible for handling enlisted men, standing watches and other assignments.

Abandoned 33 Years Ago

The announcement from Admiral Forrest Sherman, chief of naval operations, and Rear Admiral James L. Holloway, jr., said the Navy was returning in part to a practice abandoned 33 years ago. In their day at the academy, members of the upcoming graduating class took their final sea duty as midshipmen scattered through the fleet instead of on a special cruise.

Three hundred and forty other members of the Annapolis senior class, some 1020 third classmen,

Home Editors Join Critics Of McCarthy

Wisconsin Papers Dropping Attitude Of 'Wait and See'

(At the request of The Washington Post, Edwin R. Bayley, a reporter for the Milwaukee Journal, made the following canvass of reaction in Senator McCarty's home State to his allegations against State Department employes and others.—Editor's note.)

By Edwin R. Bayley

Milwaukee, April 9. —Editors of most of Wisconsin's daily and weekly newspapers were slow to comment on Senator Joseph R. McCarthy's allegations that there are Communists in the State Department. The general attitude during the first month of McCarthy's campaign seemed to be: "Wait and see. Maybe Joe has something."

Two or three of the larger newspapers were critical even while McCarthy was traveling about the Nation revising and scaling down his list of State Department "Communists." But not until the last two weeks have many Wisconsin editors taken sides in the wrangle.

The majority of those who have taken a stand are critical of McCarthy. This is significant in Wisconsin, for all but half a dozen newspapers, including weeklies, are Republican, or 'independent,' leaning to Republican.

The Milwaukee Journal, the State's largest newspaper, supported Governor Dewey for President in 1948. First in the State to criticize McCarthy's current tactics, the Journal has hammered at the Senator almost daily, calling him "Jumping Joe."

Excerpts from the Journal's recent editorials:

"McCarthy's harum-scarum Red hunt is rapidly turning out to be one of the great flops of our times, but the damage it is doing in dividing our people and weakening our foreign policy will long be with us.

"People are beginning to put McCarthy's charges in the 'wolf, wolf'

Record Set By Craft at 5200 Miles

Hongkong-Honolulu Voyage Without Incident at Speed Of About 10.4 Knots

Honolulu, Territory of Hawaii, April 9 (U.P.).—An American snorkel-type submarine—the USS Pickerel—has completed a 21-day, 5200-mile voyage under water from Hongkong to Honolulu to set a new record for submerged operation, the Navy announced today.

The skipper of the vessel, Comdr. Paul Schratz of Pittsburgh, Pa., described the voyage under the Pacific as "the most comfortable trip I have ever made."

Schratz, 34-year-old Annapolis graduate, originally talked the Navy into letting him make the underwater trip. His 1500-ton vessel, commissioned last year, left Hongkong March 15 and arrived here last Wednesday.

Longest Trip Known

A Navy spokesman in Washington said it was "by far" the longest distance ever traveled under water by a United States submarine and "to the best of our information the longest distance ever traveled by any submarine."

Schratz said the Pickerel carried both armed and practice torpedoes and covered the distance at "about 10.4 knots" on a partial fuel load.

The Pickerel surfaced at the entrance to Pearl Harbor at 3:30 p. m. (8:30 p. m. EST) Wednesday after 505 hours under water. Top military commanders in the islands, including Admiral Arthur W. Radford, Commander in Chief of the Pacific Fleet, were on the dock to meet her.

The Pickerel was kept on course throughout the trip by Loran (a radio navigational aid used by ships and planes). Land was sighted six times.

Schratz said his crew of 67 men and 8 officers stood the trip well. They watched two movies a day out of a stock of 30 they obtained before leaving the Orient.

The crew got little or no exercise during the trip, spending most of the time off watch playing cribbage and acey deucey, Schatz said.

Read 35 Books

He said he read 35 books during the trip. Pacific war series by Samuel Morison and Vannevar Bush's latest work on modern weapons were included in his reading.

A balky refrigerator, which caused the loss of some food, was the only mechanical trouble on the entire trip.

Russia, which is reported to have a fleet of more than 200 modern submarines, including many snorkel types seized in Germany at the end of the war, has never published figures on performance.

The snorkel device, which en-

6 Reported Lost As Tug Sinks in Chesapeake Bay

Norfolk, Va., April 9 (AP).—The tug Lorraine sank in lower Chesapeake Bay early today and six crewmen are believed drowned, the Coast Guard reported.

Capt. O. P. Brown of Norfolk, the skipper, was rescued from the Lorraine's pilot house four hours later by another tug.

This afternoon the tug Dottie Dee recovered the body of one man floating in a life ring four miles northwest of Wolf Trap Light station. The station is 12 miles south of the point where the Lorraine went down.

The Lorraine sank off Windmill Point Light, near the mouth of the Rappahannock River at 2 a. m., EST. She was towing the barge Ajax.

'Whistled and Took Off'

Boy, 12, Says Flying Saucer Got Away After Burning Him

Amarillo, Tex., April 9 (U.P.).—A 12-year-old boy swore today he touched a junior-sized "flying saucer" before it "made a whistling noise and took off" after a single minute's stay on earth.

The lad had the word of his companion to back up his claim—plus a red arm and face he said resulted from a gas or spray emitted by the strange object.

David Lightfoot told the Amarillo Globe News he and his 9-year-old cousin, Charles Lightfoot, were fishing yesterday when the weird chain of events began.

David said they sighted what they first thought was a balloon. The object passed only a few feet over their heads, he said, and landed just beyond a slight hill.

The boy described the object as about the circumference of an automobile tire, and about 18 inches thick.

"I could see it good," the boy related. "It was rounded on the bottom with a top resembling a flat plate. The top part was separated from the top by about 1 inch of space, but the parts were held together by some sort of screw in the middle," he said.

David said he noticed the small area between top and bottom was "real red, like it was on fire or something."

The youth said the top half was still spinning as he approached, but a "spindle thing" jutting from the top was still, as though it were connected with the bottom.

David said "the thing" was blue-gray in color and had no opening

GOP Planning Drive for Cut In Debt Limit

New Line of Attack On Spending Aimed At $18-Billion Slash

NYHT News Service

Adopting a new line of attack against Truman Administration spending, Republicans last night announced plans to slash the statutory limit on the staggering public debt.

Seven Republican members of the House Ways and Means Committee, headed by Representative Daniel A. Reed of New York, ranking minority member of the committee, announced the move in a joint statement.

"The surest way to force the Truman Administration to come to its senses financially," they said, "is to lower the limit on the national debt." Accordingly, they announced they will introduce bills when the House reconvenes April 18 to cut the statutory debt limit from its present 275 billion dollars to 257 billion dollars, noting that on March 31 the debt stood at $255,622,574,316.

The move ties in with the current campaign of the House leadership to shave about one billion dollars from the pending $29,045,030,164 omnibus appropriation bill carrying the bulk of the Administration's proposed 41-billion-dollar spending program for the fiscal year opening July 1.

Representative Joseph W. Martin, jr., of Massachusetts, Republican leader and former Speaker of the House, joined this campaign last week with a slashing attack on the "extravagant" spending and "economic witch doctors" of the Truman Administration.

The Reed group declared that their debt-limit-cutting plan would leave the Treasury a margin of one and one-half million dollars

Churches Jammed

50,000 Attend Sunrise Services As Washington Observes Easter

(Pictures on Page 2)

By Martha J. Hall
Post Reporter

With the joyous words "He is risen from the dead," Christians in Washington and around the world proclaimed the resurrection of Christ at Easter services yesterday.

Celebration of the triumphant festival began in the earliest hours of the day, when the Easter liturgy was sung in several churches at midnight.

Before dawn, thousands of worshipers gathered on green hillsides and in churches for sunrise services. A cold wind and temperatures near the freezing mark had many worshipers huddled under blankets.

Church attendance at all morning services was heavy, with the greatest crowds attending masses and services between 10 a. m. and 1 p. m.

Many churches held extra services to accommodate the hosts of Washingtonians and tourists who wished to attend services marking Christ's triumph over death.

Sixteenth st., its length dotted with churches, was thronged with people before and after the services and traffic at times was slowed almost to a halt.

On the steps of First Baptist, Foundry and Mount Vernon Place Methodist Churches and St. Matthew's Cathedral, great crowds of people waited in the bright sunlight for early services to end so they could get into worship services.

Among the first to celebrate Easter were persons of Greek Orthodox faith, who heard the liturgy of the resurrection at services beginning at midnight. Three years out of four, their Easter falls five weeks after that of the western church, but this year it coincided.

In Greek Orthodox homes yesterday the traditional paschal lamb was roasted over an outdoor fire and red eggs, symbol of joy, were exchanged. In the afternoon there was a "service of joy" in place of the usual morning rite.

An estimated 20,000 persons—17,000 in parked cars and the rest standing on the windy slopes—joined in a sunrise service at National Memorial Park, Falls Church, Va.

They heard the Rev. Glendale Burton, pastor of Wilson Boulevard Christian Church, Arlington, declare that "Christ never aspired to official position; He never delved into politics; but He did found a Kingdom—the Sermon on the Mount was His constitution.

Officials of Fort Lincoln Cemetery, Bladensburg rd. and the District Line, estimated that more than 50,000 persons attended the service there at dawn. It was the second largest crowd ever to attend the service, they said.

It was sponsored by the Organized Bible Class Association of Washington. As the sun rose in the cloudless sky, the worshipers sang the traditional Easter hymn, "Christ the Lord Is Risen Today." The Rev. Roy L. Smith, publishing agent of the Methodist Church, spoke on the Resurrection.

Shortly after dawn members of Del Ray Baptist Church in Alex-

Attack on Church Disrupts Services In Notre Dame

Paris, April 9 (AP).—A 21-year-old former student of religion momentarily disrupted Easter services in Paris' famed Notre Dame Cathedral today by climbing into the pulpit to blame Christianity for the world's ills.

Police said the plot was hatched in a basement night club of the Saint Germain-des-Pres area, the Greenwich Village of Paris.

Michel Mourre was quickly ousted from the pulpit and hustled out. The scuffling continued in the square outside. Four men were arrested.

Police said Mourre would be charged with impersonating a member of a religious order, punishable by six months to two years in prison.

Pope Implores World to End Crimes, Wars

400,000 Persons Hear Solemn Exhortation of Pontiff at St. Peter's

Vatican City, April 9 (U.P.).—Pope Pius XII implored the world today to abandon its "crimes, massacres and wars" in Easter services before an estimated 400,000 persons crowding St. Peter's basilica and the sun-bathed square outside.

In a solemn Holy Year exhortation from the main altar of the world's largest church, the Pope declared there can be no peace for individuals, groups or nations unless they conform to the divine laws of God.

His speech was carried by loudspeakers to a hushed crowd of pilgrims gathered in St. Peter's square from all parts of the earth. It was broadcast to the world by Vatican radio.

After the two-hour Easter mass, the Pope appeared on the balcony to give the pontifical blessing to the faithful crowded outside.

The Pope appealed to the world to return to the "royal road" of Christianity.

"By bitter experience," he said, "well do we know how many crimes, massacres and wars have been caused because men abandoned the royal road which the Divine Redeemer pointed out by His shining example and consecrated with His blood.

"Each and every one must return to that path and be convinced of the fact that peace cannot come to society unless it inspires and guides the heart of each individual."

The Pope said "the teaching of the great Roman orator (Cicero) even though a pagan, is very appropriate." He quoted him:

"If we wish to pass in peaceful tranquility that period of time apportioned to our life we must resist with all our strength and by every means those disturbances brought about by the foolishness of man and stirred up heedlessly."

Brannan Plan Use Suggested

New Developments in Congress Hint Potato Fight Reopening

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Congress may not yet be done with potato legislation this session. Two developments over the weekend indicate a possible early reopening of the bitterly argued question.

Either development—one a suggestion that the Brannan Plan be applied to potatoes, and the other an entirely new proposal—would knock out the increases in cotton and peanut acreages that were adopted only 10 days ago after one of the bitterest fights of the session.

Several Senators, including Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.) declared they voted for the measure only because it contained drastic controls over next year's potato crop. President Truman said in his message to Congress last Monday that he would have vetoed the measure except for the potato section. Here is what has happened since:

1. The potent American Farm Bureau Federation has come out strongly against the potato provisions. These call for removal of price supports next year unless Government-enforced marketing quotas are in force. The federation has "serious misgivings" that marketing quotas will work on spuds.

2. Senator Richard B. Russell (D., Ga.) was quoted in yesterday's Atlanta Journal as saying he "would not oppose" a trial of the Brannan Plan on potatoes.

This remark was accepted in some quarters as an indication that Russell might be quietly supporting an experiment with the Administration proposal.

Russell holds the important job of chairman of the Agriculture subcommittee of the Senate Appropriations Committee. He works closely with his fellow Southerner Allen J. Ellender (D., La.) the No. 2 Democrat on the Agriculture Committee. He leaves the initiation of agricultural legislation to Ellender, but often takes the floor for such measures when they run into trouble. It was Russell who led the fight for the cotton-peanut bill when it barely escaped defeat two weeks ago.

The Farm Bureau criticism of the potato section was made in a letter from President Allan B. Kline to Ellender. Kline came through with a suggestion that he asserted would "reduce the cost of the potato program to a fraction of the 1949 outlay."

The potato provisions are among the most unusual Congress has passed in several sessions. In effect, they amount to Congress ordering itself to do something by

Increases Up to 50%

Powerful Growth Stimulus Found in Drug Aureomycin

Philadelphia, April 9 (U.P.).—An important new use for the drug aureomycin as a powerful growth stimulator was disclosed here today.

The "golden drug" may prove of great value in speeding the stunted growth of undernourished children, it was announced at the 117th national convention of the American Chemical Society, which opened here today.

Aureomycin has increased the rate of growth of hogs, chickens and turkeys by as much as 50 percent. Its effects "far exceed" those obtainable with any known vitamin, scientists at the Lederle Laboratories, Pearl River, N. Y., reported. It is being tested now on undersized children.

Drs. E. L. R. Stokstad and T. H. Jukes said the drug's newly-discovered nutritional powers promise to be of major importance in extending the world's meat supply and cutting the cost of its production.

This growth-accelerating action "may hold enormous long-range significance for the survival of the human race in a world of dwindling resources and expanding populations," they reported to the convention of 4000 chemists and chemical engineers.

Scientists stumbled on aureomycin's growth-promoting qualities during research on Vitamin B-12, another growth stimulator.

Up to now, aureomycin has been considered solely as a weapon to fight disease. It has been used successfully to treat virus pneumonia, amebic dysentery, whooping cough and various infections.

235,000 See Cherry Trees Here Despite Easter Chill

Park Car Traffic Hits All-Time High; Churches Jammed; 70,000 at Parade

By Lee Grove
Post Reporter

Washington's beloved cherry trees yesterday drew an estimated 235,000 persons in their Easter finery to the Tidal Basin and Potomac Park area.

Connecticut Avenue's Easter "parade" attracted 70,000 persons and other thousands attended sunrise services, as Washington residents and visitors observed the generally sunny day outdoors despite temperatures that never rose above 51 degrees and winds of 4 to 20 miles per hour.

Traffic was heavy throughout the downtown section, but the jam was greatest in the section from Connecticut Avenue to the Potomac River, and across the Mount Vernon and Memorial Bridges to Virginia cars moved at a snail's pace much of the day.

Pictures and story of the record-breaking Connecticut ave. Easter parade will be found on Page B-1.

Of the 235,000 persons to visit the cherry blossoms, some 160,000 toured the area by car, according to Inspector Mark Raspberry of the United States Park Police, who said there were between 35,000 and 40,000 vehicles.

Heaviest Flow

The automobile traffic was the heaviest he had ever known for Easter or the Cherry Blossom Festival, the veteran park police officer said last night. Pedestrians were fewer than anticipated.

The Cherry Blossom Festival performance at the Watergate was canceled at 2:30 p. m., a half hour after it was scheduled to start, because of inclement weather which kept away all but the most hardy.

Less than 50 persons were on hand to hear the announcement of the show's cancellation. Only about 3000 persons had attended the Saturday performance of the revue which the week before had drawn a capacity house of 10,000 persons.

Purchase price of tickets will be refunded today through Wednesday at Room 204, Evening Star Building.

Following cancellation of the performance, the festival's princesses and their military escorts came by bus to see the cherry blossoms.

Brief Stay

In a park filled with amateur photographers they proved an extra attraction during their relatively brief stay among the blossoms.

Easter bonnets in all manner of floral decoration competed with the cherry trees, yellow forsythia and other shrubs. A ukulele strummer and a couple in Japanese costume were among those in the happy

President Greets Easter Day at Sunrise Services

Key West, Fla., April 9 (U.P.).—President Truman wound up his long Florida vacation today by observing Easter in traditional style that included sunrise religious services and gaily colored Easter eggs.

Mr. Truman was up before dawn and with his daughter, Margaret, motored to seaside Easter services held shortly after 6 a. m. on the palm-lined beach of the Naval station where he has been vacationing.

Lunch at the winter White House maintained the Easter atmosphere. At Mr. Truman's place was a brightly decorated egg inscribed, "The President."

It was the Chief Executive's last full day of vacation. He has been away from Washington since March 12, his longest vacation since entering the White House.

Mr. Truman will fly to Washington Monday aboard a special Constellation of the Military Air Transport service. Takeoff time from Boca Chica Naval Air Station is scheduled for 10 a. m. The plane is expected in Washington about 1:30 p. m.

At Arlington National Cemetery, about 7000 crowded into the amphitheater at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier to witness the annual service sponsored by the Grand Encampment of Knights Templar.

As the United States Marine Band played "Onward Christian Soldiers," the knights, their black and white plumes whipping in the wind, marched into the center of the amphitheater. Those wearing the white-plumed hats formed a cross in the midst of the men wearing the black plumes.

Place Cross on Tomb

The Rev. Edgar Cordell Powers, chaplain of the Southern Jurisdiction of the Scottish Rite gave the sermon and the Rev. John C. Palmer, Grand Prelate of the Grand Commandery of Knights Templar of the District, led the service.

Afterward, the Knights placed a cross of lilies on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

In a message to Christian people broadcast from the Washington Cathedral, the Right Rev. Angus Dun, Episcopal bishop of Washington said that "because Christ is indeed God's king of men, all our mocking of His Kingship will continue to bring destruction and death upon us."

"Just because in Him are the light and life, which are the light and life of men, we can only have peace and fulfillment here below—in our personal lives and in our common life—if, being risen with Him, we seek those things which are above."

Pittsburgh Pastor Preaches

The Rev. Kevin Conley of St. Paul's Monastery, Pittsburgh, Pa., preached at the high mass at Immaculate Conception Church, H and 8th sts. nw.

"The Resurrection of Christ gives honor and glory to God and also justifies man in his faith in the Divinity of Christ. Therefore, we should thank God for our faith and rejoice in this glorious mystery of His resurrection that justifies us in our faith."

A blast of trumpets heralded the Easter service at National City Christian Church, Thomas cir. nw., where musicians stood on the church steps playing Easter hymns before the service.

The Rev. J. Warren Hastings, pastor of the church, declared that the people who lived in Jesus' day did not understand Him or His message, "so they libeled Him."

"Were He alive now, in the flesh, some warped brain would probably call Him a Communist," he said.

Boy Scouts Save Air Crash Victim Lost in Swamp

Homerville, Ga., April 9 (AP).—A troop of "explorer" Boy Scouts today rescued a man who had been wandering in the black Okefenokee Swamp since his plane crashed a week ago. The crash victim, James Douglas Stewart of Weston, W. Va., was brought by the Scouts to the Huey Hospital.

For a week Stewart had been stumbling and wading through the dark waters, living off bamboo shoots and a few swamp mushrooms.

Hospital attendants here said that had the Ninth Airforce veteran not been in excellent condition he would have died before the Scouts found him.

Stewart rented the plane in Jacksonville, Fla., last Sunday and disappeared in a flight over the swamp 20 miles to the north. He said his plane crashed and burned.

The Scouts from Atlanta, led by Robert Shivers, entered the swamp on a camping trip last week.

Giant Flying Boat May Alter Strategy

San Diego, Calif., April 9 (NYHT).—A huge 60-ton flying boat designed to land and operate with the United States fleet on the high seas in any part of the world is being put through its final flight evaluation tests here.

The flying boat, which has just completed taxi trials on San Diego Bay, will carry a powerful armament including cannon, rocket projectiles and medium-range guided missiles that actually will make the craft a Navy cruiser with wings.

It was built by Consolidated Vultee Corp., constructors of the giant Air Force B-36. Strategists expect the aircraft's ability to take off from seas broken by 8-foot waves and to follow the surface Navy anywhere to have a revolutionary influence on global offensive and defensive activities of the Navy.

The aircraft is equipped with new turbine propeller engines developing 5500 horsepower from a weight only about half as much as orthodox piston engines of the same output.

These turbo-prop engines built by the Allison division of General Motors, are generally similar in construction to pure jet engines but turn two contra-rotating propellers each in the four-engine installation provided for by the new flying boat's designers. They use considerably less fuel than pure jet engines and make possible much longer range.

Up to now such engines never have been flight-tested in the United States even by the military to any extent.

The new and unnamed Convair flying boat, known in Navy circles as the XP-5Y-1, is supposed to be primarily an antisubmarine aircraft intended for assignment to counteract current snorkel submarine building by the Soviet Union. But some far-seeing strategists feel it might become the protype of the missile-launching cruiser of the future. Guided missiles already are being launched by United States undersea craft in almost routine practice operations.

Slow Lawmaking

GI Hovels Due in Part To 'System'

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

(Second of a Series)

American servicemen whose families have been living in hovels overseas can blame their predicament in large part on the very system they enlisted to defend.

Funds to provide them with proper housing have been going through the mill. Their progress has been tortuous and slow—deadly slow. Two years were required to get from Congress the money to start the first postwar housing program and that came too late to be effective, at least in Alaska.

The agencies which pass on these funds and the procedure required by law combine to set up a steeplechase which only a few very jaded nags ever finish. In the first place, each program must be authorized by Congress before money can be appropriated to carry it out, and the process of authorization is almost an exact duplication of that of appropriation.

Slow Preliminaries

Each service must determine where and what types of housing are most urgently needed in the light of foreseeable diplomatic and military demands. Then cost estimates must be prepared within the services, together with data to defend the programs, and these must be submitted to the Secretary of Defense. After they have been approved by his office, the programs and estimates go before the Budget Bureau, when they are carefully checked and rechecked

When the Budget Bureau has finished with the programs, they are introduced as bills in Congress, not bills to appropriate money to carry them out, but to authorize the appropriation. In each House of Congress the bill goes before the Armed Services Committee, which refers it to a subcommittee. After hearings before the subcommittees on both sides of the Capitol, requiring the same officials to testify twice on the same program, the bills are reported to the full committees. They usually contain subcommittee amendments which must be accepted or rejected by the full committees, which ultimately report the bills to the floor, with or without amendments.

Same Process for Funds

In the House the bill goes on the calendar and also to the Rules Committee, which may or may not grant it an early chance at debate and passage. In the Senate it goes on the calendar, where it can remain indefinitely unless, by agreement of the leadership, it is called up for debate. Once on the way to enactment, each bill may be loaded with amendments in addition to those added by the committees. These amendments call for a conference between representatives of the House and Senate to reconcile their differing versions. Finally, the compromise reached by the conferees must be voted upon and accepted by each house before the bill can go to the White House for the President's signature.

Even then, after this awkward and time-consuming process, the services have got no money to start building homes for their people. Another bill must now be introduced in each house appropriating the funds authorized and must go through much the same laborious process as did the authorization measure.

By the time these two bills have thus slowly made their separate ways onto the statute books much can have happened. Families of servicemen may have broken up in quarrels induced by the frictions of uncomfortable living or long separation. Valuable men, trained at public expense in vital trades, may have left the service in despair over the apparent futility of attempting to maintain their families in common decency. The morale of those men who remain may well have degenerated to the state where military efficiency is impossible.

Of course such delays are by no means inevitable. Administrations and Congresses have demonstrated that necessary legislation can be whacked out in no time, as in the early New Deal days and during the war. But these bursts of speed are the results of public pressure—which is rarely exerted in favor of the military services in time of peace.

During World War II it was not necessary to go through the process of adopting authorizing legislation prior to making military appropriations, and funds for the services met with little delay. No special knowledge was required to comprehend the need for military expenditures when only the Army, the Navy and the Air Force stood between the Nation and military defeat. Once the war was over the quite natural trend was toward retrenchment, a trend which preceeded without discrimination among the various military demands.

So, throughout 1946, 1947 and 1948, funds for military housing languished. Only late in 1949, when members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff returned from an Alaskan visit with stories and pictures of the deplorable conditions in which American servicemen and their families were living was a housing appropriation taken from the overall construction measure and passed. And even then funds were made available too late to begin building in Alaska that year.

Complicated Planning

While examination of all factors entering into present lack of adequate military housing overseas inevitably leads to legislative delay as the primary cause, there are others. One of these is the outmoded and overcomplicated system of construction planning employed by the Army and the Navy and, to a lesser extent, the Air Force.

Specifications for materials are often such that contractors' estimates must be prepared in much greater detail than for ordinary construction work. Sometimes these specifications require uneconomical operations. Procedures for advertising for and handling proposals are often awkward and time-consuming. In turn, these specifications and methods frequently increase the costs of construction to such an extent that further delays take place when the Budget Bureau holds projects up while seeking means to bring these costs down.

In the main, however, delays so far have arisen from the complicated administrative and legislative procedures hallowed by years of usage and expanding with the ever-growing bulk of government.

(Tuesday's article will deal with belated appropriations.)

U. S. Exports To S. America Fall Off 14%

United States exports to Latin American countries totalled $2,712,000,000 last year, a drop of 14 percent from 1948, the Commerce Department reported yesterday.

Imports from Latin America were valued at $2,304,000,000 compared with $2,352,000,000 in 1948.

Thus the "dollar gap" in Latin American trade was narrowed from $813,682,000 in 1948 to $408,546,000 last year.

The Department said the export decline reflected tightening of trade and currency controls in nearly every South American country. The controls are aimed at checking the drain of dollars.

Another factor which cut down on United States sales south of the border was the return of European exports to the market. European goods were popular in many Latin American countries before the war.

The Department said that high prices for many Latin American products "impeded United States imports from the area."

The Latin American republics as a group accounted for 23 percent of this country's exports in 1949. Before the war, Latin American trade represented only about 16 percent of total United States exports.

Halting of Russian Imports Sought

Seven Republican House members called on Secretary Snyder of the Treasury yesterday to stop imports of Russian products under a law prohibiting importation of goods produced by convict, forced or indentured labor.

They made public a letter to Snyder saying that Russia has sent into the United States 59,000 cases of canned brab meat worth three million dollars and plans to export to the United States another 400,000 cases worth over 20 million dollars.

"This type of dumping operation is a serious threat to our entire fishing industry and particularly the crab fishing industry located in New England, Maryland and the Pacific Coast," the letter said.

The letter was signed by Representatives Nelson (R., Me.), Norblad (R., Oreg.), Scudder (R., Calif.), Nixon (R., Calif.), Mack (R., Wash.), Miller (R., Md.) and Tollefson (R., Wash.).

and 1340 other Naval ROTC seniors and sophomores will take their summer sea training in the traditional manner in two special six weeks cruises aboard the USS Missouri and eight destroyers.

Not only will the new "in-fleet cruise" for part of the embryo officers give them more advanced training than if aboard the Missouri, but the plan will permit more Naval Reservists to take two-week cruises on the battleship this summer, officials noted.

The 1350 Annapolis and college midshipmen taking the "in-fleet cruises" will spend eight weeks aboard aircraft carriers, cruisers, destroyers, fast mine layers and attack transports in the course of normal operations of those ships.

Dates Announced

Rear Admiral F. D. Kirtland will command the special midshipmen cruise squadron and fly his flag on the Mighty Mo. Dates for the cruises are June 3 to July 15 and July 22 to September 7. The vessels will call at Atlantic ports and one foreign port in the Western Hemisphere.

All midshipmen will spend part of the summer at Annapolis. First classmen will serve in submarines in the Chesapeake, and the third class will be given practical training in seamanship, gunnery, navigation and engineering.

Members of the second (junior) class will have an "aviation summer." This will include aviation ground school at Annapolis and visits by plane to various Naval air stations and Air Force bases.

All second classmen also will take part in "Camid V"—the annual joint amphibious maneuvers held with West Pointers. All midshipmen will receive five weeks leave during the summer and the new academic year will begin late in the week after Labor Day, it was announced.

Top U. S. Officials Will Discuss H-Bomb Impact on Atom Plans

By The Associated Press

The Nation's top defense and diplomatic leaders will be called before Congress members soon to discuss the impact of hydrogen bomb development on the United States plan for atomic control.

Senator Brien McMahon (D., Conn.) yesterday said Secretary of State Dean Acheson and Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, will be among those asked to meet with the Joint Senate-House Atomic Committee. McMahon is chairman of the 18-member group.

The Connecticut lawmaker said in an interview that the hearing will be behind closed doors and start shortly after the House returns from its Easter recess on April 18.

McMahon laid the groundwork for the hearings in a speech to the Senate March 1. He then proposed that the United States immediately enter into talks with its North Atlantic pact partners "for the purpose of jointly agreeing upon a new approach to atomic peace."

As a forerunner, he proposed that the joint committee review the entire international atomic control problem in the light of President Truman's order that the H-bomb be developed.

The United States atomic control plan, now substantially approved by a majority of the United Nations members, calls for an international agency to have authority over atomic energy the world over.

Russia has balked the plan in the U. N., and no compromise is in sight. The Soviets have insisted on complete atomic disarmament as a prerequisite to any international control.

McMahon raised these two questions in the Senate:

"Has our thinking fully caught up with the scientific facts peculiar to hydrogen warfare?

"Until we chart this new area of technics, can we feel absolutely sure that the United Nations plan should not stand unchanged?"

Stocked Bins of Berlin Defy Any New Blockade Attempt

Berlin, April 9 (AP).—The West has stocked Berlin's bins with enough food and coal to make a mockery of any new blockade, Western officials declared today.

In the 11 months since the Russians lifted their blockade of the city, a steady stream of train, truck and barge traffic has piled up:

182 days' supply of flour and grain.

47 days' supply of other food that is a little more perishable and therefore cannot be stocked too far in advance.

150 days' of coal.

When the Soviets claimed down in June, 1948, in an effort to impose their political will on Berlin, the city had only an average of six weeks' supplies on hand. Now the basic staples are in about six months' supply.

The Western powers and the German city government filled the storage houses despite a generally accepted idea that the Russians, having failed once, will not again try blockade tactics.

They hold to the belief that what happened once could happen again and next time they will not be caught napping.

Western commanders in Berlin are known to be in agreement that any new blockade tactics would probably be tried—if at all—not by the Russians, but by the Communist government of East Germany.

The control of transport through the Soviet zone from West Germany to Berlin has been largely turned over by the Russians to the East German Communist government.

Hainan Offensive Believed Near

Hongkong, April 9 (AP).—Reports from Communist China today said Gen. Lin Piao, the Reds' best field general, had been ordered to conquer Hainan and that full-scale invasion of that big Nationalist island might be only a few days off.

Hainan, 10 miles off the south coast, has resisted a series of small-scale invasion attempts.

Today's reports from Canton said Gen. Chu Teh, Red commander-in-chief, had ordered Lin Piao to get busy and had given him eight armies to do the job. (A Chinese army usually totals 10,000 to 20,000 men, meaning that 80,000 to 160,000 Reds have been massed for the attack.)

holiday crowd, some of whom were frankly footsore before the day was over.

The park area began to fill up early in the morning with cars, many with out-of-District license plates.

To handle the traffic in the cherry-blossom area, Inspector Raspberry had every available Park policeman, 98 in all, including six on horseback, on duty from 9 a. m. to dark.

Traffic lights from 17th to 26th sts. on Constitution ave., at 15th st. and Maine ave., and 23d st. and Independence ave., were turned off at noon and police regulated the flow of traffic by hand.

From 3 to 5 p. m. Constitution ave. between Capitol and 23d st. was a solid mass of slowly moving cars.

Roads out of Washington were crowded last night as a good proportion of the quarter-million visitors, the Board of Trade estimated were in Washington for the weekend, left for their homes. Hotels, crowded Saturday night, reported business considerably lighter last night.

Navy Blankets Warm Shivering Young Visitors

Fifty-five high school students from Arcade, N. Y., now know Washington's cherry blossoms are not synonymous with balmy weather, and that the Navy can be very human.

The visitors shivered in unheated cabins at the Washington Tourist Camp Saturday night when the temperature dropped to 30.

Assistant Manager G. S. Tipton, an old Navy man, solved the situation yesterday. He called the Navy Air Reserve Training Unit at Anacostia. When the students returned after checking off the blossoms and the Easter parade 150 Navy blankets had arrived.

Heavy Ice Storm Isolates Town

Clinton, Iowa, April 9 (AP).—An ice storm, described as the worst here in many years, isolated this eastern Iowa city of 27,000 tonight. A half inch to an inch and a half of ice formed over tree branches, telephone and telegraph wires and power lines.

The storm extended about 40 miles west into Iowa, north into Minnesota and east into Illinois.

The only means of communication with the outside world for Clinton was by an amateur radio network. Radio amateurs were handling messages for all three railroads operating into the town.

C. L. Sampson, central manager of the Northwestern Bell Telephone Co., said more than 500 telephones were out of service in Clinton alone and that wires were breaking faster than they could be repaired.

A strong east wind is breaking poles at some places in the storm area, he said.

The Interstate Power Co. reported "about a 70 percent" power failure.

Hundreds of families are without heat.

Everything at Steak!

By Albert Parchey Mesirow

LAST week we had the distinguished honor of being host, for the first time, to Hon. Rufus S. Lusk, who is not only one of Washington's most actively civic-minded citizens, but the moving spirit behind the local Gourmet Society. Mr. Lusk, after partaking of a filet mignon, cooked the way he likes it . . . rare and gushing red juice . . . insisted on going out to the kitchen and personally congratulating the chef. "I came in because of your column in The Post," he said. "Now I realize that for years I've been missing something!" Whereupon followed an exchange of recipes, but what our Chef could receive of comparable epicurean value to his mushroom sauce recipe mystifies me. Even from such a distinguished gourmet as Mr. Lusk!

Everybody knows how an ancient English king, enormously pleased with the beef placed before him, drew his sword and knighted the cut. "I dub you," he proclaimed, "Sir Loin!" And sirloin it remains to this day. That's a fitting tribute to a really noble portion.

steaks! steaks! steaks!

But like Mr. Lusk, I believe the absolute ultimate in beef is the filet mignon. Here at Parchey's we are almost fanatical about them. We could buy filets already cut, but we prefer to prepare them ourselves. Our men in Chicago and Kansas City buy for us the finest beef from pedigreed steers grown plump after long months on a golden corn diet in a Mid-West feeding pen. This beef is then shipped to us in huge strips of tenderloin, weighing from 6 to 8 lbs. each. We age it until it is at the exact peak of tenderness and flavor.

I wish you could see the near-reverence with which our chefs trim these huge tenderloins, removing every ounce of fat, every tiny tendon, every hint of gristle. Then with a skill that is really beautiful to behold, they partition the tenderloin into fabulous, 2-inch-thick filets. "Mignon" is a misnomer as far as Parchey's is concerned. Ours should be called "filets magnum"!

Cooking these superb and juicy filets is a culinary rite which in singleness of its ritualistic purpose rivals the dedicated devotions of pagan priests in an Oriental temple. First comes the preparation of the sauce. A thick slab of creamery butter is melted in a saucepan, and blended with a rich vegetable oil. Seasoning is then carefully added; a generous pinch of white salt; a soupcon of delicate hickory-smoked flavoring; a tiny dash of secret vegetable powder that endows this succulent mixture with the rich red color of an autumn oak leaf!

rhapsody in flavor

Plunged first into this sauce, the filet is then transferred to our super-hot ceramic broiler. For a brief minute it is seared; placed high against the flame until its rich natural juices, imprisoned by the sauce, crackle and pop in their eagerness to escape their delicious prison. But the surfaces of the filet, under that intense heat, quickly turn crispy brown, securely sealing the juices until your knife liberates them!

After searing, the filet is moved farther from the flame, to broil in leisure to the exact point of your own preference. It is brought to you piping hot, garnished with a sprig of verdant parsley; rich butter sauce flowing from its encrusted sepia surface in tiny rivulets of golden globules; butter-tender beef at its mouth-watering best, each steaming whisp of its fragrant and savory aroma a tantalizing promise of juicy and succulent delight!

Steak, steak, beautiful steak! Filet, filet, beautiful filet. Parchey's, Parchey's . . . hey! What am I saying? But maybe you'll think the same flattering things when you've come in and sampled our filet mignon done as you like it! The address: 19th at K, N.W.

steaks! steaks! steaks!

And while on the subject of being flattered: from Santa Fe, New Mexico, came Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Konopak. On arrival, they bought a Post and read this column. Next night they came in and ordered steaks. Said Mrs. Konopak, "The steak is wonderful. But the apple pie is out-of-this-world!" Next week, I'll go into detail about Parchey's apple pie. It makes wonderful eating . . . it should make good reading.

Parade Braves Wintry Blasts At New York

New York, April 9 (AP).—Bowed heads and pinched-looking faces were in fashion on Fifth Avenue today as a cold north wind swept the traditional Easter style parade.

The crowd along the avenue was noticeably smaller than in past years and went home much sooner. Police estimated it at one million, as compared with 1,500,000 last year.

It was cold—in the low 40s even around noon. The wind was strong and bitter.

But the church-goers swarmed in undiminished numbers into St. Patrick's, the Roman Catholic Cathedral, and St. Thomas', St. Bartholomew's and other fashionable Protestant churches.

At the big Catholic Cathedral they waited in long lines outside in the cold—many just to walk through the church after the last mass.

Earlier, in Central Park, some 1200 persons had gathered, shivering on park benches, with traces of last night's surprise snow still on the ground, to hear the annual All-Nations Easter Sunrise Service.

The spring fashion parade on the Avenue was one mostly of furs and topcoats. Only the ever-present beflowered hats brightened the scene, and there seemed fewer of those than usual.

More serious in purpose in the parade was a group of men and women of the War Resisters League, leading one child and pushing another in a carriage. Their pasteboard hat signs demanded abolition of the H-bomb and proclaimed: "We want peace."

Police ordered them off Fifth ave.

Throngs Visit City's Shrines During Day

The Capital City's permanent patriotic shrines rivaled the temporary cherry blossoms as Easter Day attraction, more than 125,000 persons visiting the various edifices yesterday.

The beauty and dignity of the Lincoln Memorial drew 75,000 visitors, guards said, topping the attendance at the other places.

Nearly 25,000 viewed the Jefferson Memorial, near the Tidal Basin. The memorial remained open beyond its usual 9 p. m., closing, because special lighting was provided for night visitors to the cherry blossoms.

Approximately 14,000 persons went to the National Gallery of Art, guards there said, and guides estimated that 7000 visitors trooped through the Capitol's corridors and chambers.

The Washington Monument, which closed at 5 p. m., attracted 5274 visitors. Of these, 3610 rode the elevator and the others took the laborious route to the top.

More than 500 persons viewed the exhibits at the Lincoln Museum.

Area Children On Trail of Easter Eggs

Thousands of eager egghounds will be unleashed in the area's parks and playgrounds today in the traditional Easter Monday hunt for the boiled and dyed pellets.

Biggest snoop job scheduled is the one at Magruder Park in Hyattsville where more than 15,000 youngsters are expected to ferret out 3000 eggs. Hundreds of the eggs are worth money, one golden goose egg having a trade-in value of $5.

Festivities there begin at 10 a. m. and will include crowning of the Easter Queen, Lucy Viverette, 12, of 7500 Colesville rd., Hyattsville. Other contests and entertainment are also scheduled in the outing sponsored by the county Kiwanis Club and the Sidney Lust Theaters.

The District Recreation Department has prepared a week-long program of events for the Easter Week vacation period. The department's egg program for today:

10 a. m.—Chevy Chase Playground, 41st and Livingston sts. nw., egg-rolling; Hearst Playground, 37th and Tilden sts. nw., egg hunt; Montrose Park Playground, 30th and R sts. nw., egg rolling; Kenilworth Recreation Center, Kenilworth ave. and Ord st. ne., egg hunt; Rosedale Playground, 17th and Gales st. ne., egg hunt; Bald Eagle Playground, Nichols ave. and Joliet st. sw., egg roll; Rose Park Playground, 27th and O sts. nw., egg roll.

U. S. Bank Assets Reported by FDIC At All-Time High

By The Associated Press

Assets of the 13,268 banks insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation reached an all time high at the start of 1950.

FDIC Chairman Mapel T. Harl, reporting this yesterday, said the total was 170 billion dollars during 1949 and topping the previous high at the start of 1946 by more than one billion dollars.

"Not one of the more than 100 million depositors served by these banks had suffered a loss from a bank failure in more than six years," Harl said. "The record of solvency and stability is without parallel in the Nation's history."

BEST-DRESSED FAMILY—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Shaffer, with daughters Patricia, Kathleen and Mary Gail

Hundreds Join Silver Spring Easter Parade

Hundreds of spectators at the second annual Easter Parade in Silver Spring became contestants yesterday as judges, accompanied by a photographer, toured the area in an auto and selected "best dressed" persons.

As the 50 or more individuals or families were picked out and photographed, the judges made notes on their appearance, but final selections were made after the photographs were developed and choices were made with the pictures in proximity.

Mrs. Robert Mayersburg, 2221 Washington ave., Silver Spring, took first honors as best-dressed woman. She wore a smoky blue tailored suit, navy blue accessories, and navy blue hat with a gay feather, and carried a nutria fur cape.

Honors for best dressed man went to A. S. Hendrickson, 5538 Wessling la., Bethesda. He wore a gray suit, navy blue chesterfield topcoat, dark homburg hat, and carried gloves.

Six-year-old Laura Diane Simms of 6845 Eastern ave., Takoma Park, was picked as best dressed child. And the prize for the best dressed family went to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Shaffer, 9202 Saybrook ave., Silver Spring, with their three daughters, Patricia, Kathleen, and Mary Gail.

Judging was done along Georgia ave., from the District line to Colesville rd., and on Colesville rd., from Georgia ave. to Fenton st. Winner in each class received a $25 merchandise certificate.

The event was sponsored by the retail merchants division of the Silver Spring Board of Trade. Judges were Fraser Webster, vice president of Marjorie Webster Junior College; Roberta Rule, and Jackson Weaver, both of the staff of radio station WMAL.

McCarthy Avoids 'Red' Tag on Radio

are the same as the Communists" on Far Eastern matters and that anyone holding such ideas was "extremely dangerous to the American people."

Brewster made the point that McCarthy had always said the proof of his charges was contained in the loyalty files of the FBI and the State Department, which he has been unable to get. He added:

"I deeply regret that the investigating committee hasn't seen fit to carry out the unanimous instructions of the Senate to secure those files."

Tydings Elaborates

While President Truman has declined to authorize release of the Lattimore files, four members of a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee investigating McCarthy's charges were shown a summary last week of evidence in possession of the FBI. Chairman Tydings (D., Md.) said afterward that the summary completely cleared Lattimore.

Yesterday Tydings said in a radio address from Baltimore that he made the statement only after he was convinced he could not be accused of attempting to "whitewash" the case. Such assurance, he added, came when Senator Lodge (R., Mass.), another committee member who had seen the summary, stated that none of his fellow Republican's charges had been proved.

"If I had made that remark," said Tydings, "being a Democrat in this Administration, I probably would have been charged with whitewashing." Lodge's statement, he explained, enabled him to say the same thing "without being accused of being partisan."

Hickenlooper Repeats Request

While the weekend radio debate was going on, Senator Hickenlooper (R., Iowa) reiterated a previous demand that the complete FBI file on Lattimore be made available to the subcommittee, of which he also is a member.

"My position," Hickenlooper said, "is that we ought to be able to examine the entire investigative file, and that goes for any material put into it based on data which Senator McCarthy gave the FBI after the summary was prepared."

McCarthy, who has said he would endeavor to induce witnesses whose testimony would support his charges to testify before the subcommittee, spent most of the weekend shuttling between Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York to contact them. Tydings said, meanwhile, that if McCarthy produced the witnesses he would be glad to give them a hearing before his subcommittee Tuesday.

Tydings said McCarthy had told him several times that "he would give me the evidence and it hasn't been forthcoming, but I am hopeful this time we shall get it," he added.

"You can't just say a man is a horse thief. You have to have someone who saw him with the horse, or saw him take the horse."

class. This is a situation made to order for Stalin's stooges . . . Anyone who points out a real Communist and may have proof to back his charges may be accused of applying the 'McCarthy smirch'—another name for a witch hunt or a phony smear campaign."

Called Headline-Hunter

The Madison Capital Times and the Sheboygan Press, emocratic papers, have been vigorously critical of McCarthy. Said the Times:

"It is obvious that Senator McCarthy has one central purpose in his current smear campaign. He is out to get his name into the headlines. He operates on a very cynical theory of politics—the theory that people do not distinguish between favorable and unfavorable publicity.

"McCarthy knows that his political stock has sunk to a new low in Wisconsin and that he must do something to raise it up again. It means very little to him that he endangers the security of the Nation and ruins the reputations of many innocent people."

The Sheboygan Press: "Senator McCarthy is on a very hot spot at the present time. It is easy to rely on rumors, but hard to prove them as facts. So far the junior Senator from Wisconsin has presented nothing of a damaging character against any Department employe."

The official State Republican newspaper, the Wisconsin State Journal, at Madison, has timidly sought to excuse McCarthy. It has not praised him but has attacked President Truman for the statement that McCarthy was "the Kremlin's greatest asset." And it has deplored the employment of sex perverts by the Government.

Other than the Milwaukee Sentinel, a Hearst paper, the only daily to openly defend McCarthy is the Appleton Post-Crescent, the Senator's home town newspaper and probably the most right-wing paper in the State. The Post-Crescent's support took the form of an attack upon three columnists — Drew Pearson, Joseph Alsop and Walter Lippmann—who criticized McCarthy.

"The President has himself practically admitted (by refusing to open loyalty files) that the charges of Senator McCarthy are rooted in fact," the Post-Crescent said.

"Mr. Truman should quit trying to protect the fuzzy-wuzzies, weaklings and other dregs that found their way into Government service by the thousands.

Here are the comments of other Wisconsin daily, with general political affiliation where known, in approximate order of size:

Eau Claire Leader (Republican): "He (McCarthy) has only succeeded to date in causing confusion and disturbance among our own people and placing the representatives of this country under a cloud. The Senator distinctly has not performed a service to the American people with his reckless and unfair charges against men and women in Government."

Janesville Gazette (Republican): "It should be remembered that Senator McCarthy charged that there are 57 card-carrying Communists in the State Department. To date he has not proved one, but he has slandered several high officials and others from the protected seat of the Senate."

Wausau Record-Herald: "Senator McCarthy's approach was wrong. He couldn't produce what he claimed he had in the way of evidence. Instead of putting the State Department on the spot, he himself is standing there."

Comments by editors of weeklies, most of them Republican:

Grant County Independent: "Joe Stalin and his Communist henchmen of the Kremlin, who are out to sabotage American foreign policy, have found an ally—another Joe—McCarthy by name."

Called Stumbling Block

Winneconne News: "Sure, it's fine to have a man with 'guts' in Congress, but he ought to have sense enough to expose his 207—no, it's 57, or let's see, is it 3? Oh, yes! His one Communist in Government (if there's one) . . . Men like McCarthy form a serious stumbling block in the path of peace."

Montreal River Miner (Hurley): "The quality of Wisconsin's public servants has tumbled in the last decade. It has reached a new low in Joe."

Ladysmith News: "Senator McCarthy seems to have discredited himself . . . Such a fiasco will not help Republican chances in the election this fall."

Chilton Times-Journal: "McCarthy evidently has some basis for his charges. If he doesn't, and he knows it better than anyone else, it's political suicide."

Burlington Free Press: "Even though you (Dean Acheson) be the scheming tool of atheistic Communist philosophers which many of your bitter opponents charge you are, or else just an isolated, idealistic visionary wrapped in the cloudy cocoon of your own importance, you should know what people think . . . The people in the streets and hamlets whom you and your diplomatic set score and ignore as stupid clods . . . Senator McCarthy is doing his country's State Department no damage. That damage has already been done.

Burlington Standard-Democrat: "McCarthy's scattered, unfounded charges spoiled all confidence in him. They reveal him as a cheap publicity-seeking politician."

Maybe He's "Timber"

New Richmond News: "From our slight personal contact with Joe, we can't get too excited over his present bid for fame . . . Maybe he's presidential timber from the Republican ranks and maybe that's what he has in mind."

Vilas County News Review (Eagle River): "Too many people are treating Senator Joseph McCarthy's charges . . . as if they were part of a political battle. We should listen to him and not to the Democrats scurrying for cover, busily applying whitewash and frantically trying to save themselves."

Wisconsin Dells Events: "We can't help but feel that Senator McCarthy has stepped into pretty deep water."

Brink's Robbery Accessories Get Immunity Offer

Boston, April 9 (AP).—The Massachusetts attorney general today promised "complete immunity from prosecution" to any accessory in the fabulous $1,700,000 Brink's robbery if he helps convict the actual robbers.

In a letter to Charles A. McCarron, chairman of the Brink's reward committee, Attorney General Francis E. Kelly said:

"I further guarantee that the identity of any informant will not be disclosed, if requested, and assurance that all resources of the Commonwealth will be used for his or her protection, if necessary."

Kelly's announcement was made as police openly admitted they still had no clews in the brazen January 17 holdup of $1,200,000 in cash and $500,000 in checks.

Discrimination Reported Dropped In 14 Restaurants

Fourteen of 23 downtown restaurants recently surveyed have opened their doors to Negro patrons, the Coordinating Committee for the Enforcement of the D. C. Anti-Discrimination Laws announced yesterday.

The survey was conducted without incident by 35 volunteers, cooperating with the committee.

A test case to determine the validity of an 1872 statute is now before Municipal Court Judge Frank H. Myers.

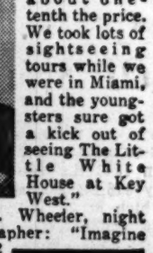
I WAS THERE AND I KNOW!

Herman Holstein, advertising manager: "A family man has to hunt the best vacation bargain possible — and I've found it! Florida in summer offers everything the millionaires enjoy in winter — at about one-tenth the price. We took lots of sightseeing tours while we were in Miami, and the youngsters sure got a kick out of seeing The Little White House at Key West."

Charmione E. Wheeler, night club photographer: "Imagine paying only $2 a day for a room in those swank ocean-front hotels! The beautiful room I had costs plenty in winter, believe me. When you work hard the rest of the year, you really appreciate living in such luxury for two whole weeks—I felt like a queen!



Marie Weller, switchboard operator: "I was a little doubtful about climate when I chose Florida for last summer's vacation, but now I'm sold! There was a cool ocean breeze day and night, and the temperature average was only 80.6°. Another thing I especially liked was the uncrowded beaches. Plenty of space to stretch out and relax!"

John Williams, insurance representative: "Man, oh man, the wonderful fishing that Florida offers in summer! A whole day with a charter group aboard a deep-sea fishing boat, for only $1.50—and marlin and sailfish just begging to bite. I got in some good golf and tennis, too—I can hardly wait to get to Florida again this year."

Jeannette C. White, secretary: "I've traveled before, but I've never enjoyed such wonderful comfort and service as on my National Airlines flight to Florida. Roomy seats, wide windows, and delicious food. What makes it best of all is that comfort and service were combined with National's low summer fares!"

Museum Wing Urged in Honor Of Pershing

Addition of a wing to the Smithsonian Institution or the National Museum as a memorial to General of the Armies John J. Pershing is under consideration by the American Battle Monuments Commission.

The proposed wing would contain a war museum. It is favored thus far by commission members over several other proposals for a Pershing memorial, it was reported yesterday by Brig. Gen. D. John Markey, U. S. A. (retired), of Walkersville, Md.

Markey, a longtime commission member, is on a commission subcommittee that is to recommend an appropriate memorial, as directed by a joint congressional resolution. The subcommittee is headed by Brig. Gen. Robert G. Woodside of Evans City, Pa., who is also vice chairman of the commission. General of the Army George C. Marshall is chairman.

The proposed Pershing Memorial Museum would contain arms, uniforms and equipment of soldiers and sailors of the United States in all its wars, as well as displays of seafaring activities during those wars, Markey said.

Commission members feel this would be preferable to a statue or other outdoor monument, since it would be inspirational, educational and of permanent interest, he said. The proposal was discussed at a recent commission meeting, but no action was taken.

The first overseas memorial to World War II dead will be a shrine, now being erected in Paris, to be finished in the fall of 1951 and costing about $350,000, Markey said.

Blossom Festival Princess Finds a Fiance in District

The title of this year's Cherry Blossoms Festival, "Spring Is a Wonderful Thing," turned out to be prophetic for blonde Anita Rabe, New York State's princess at the festival.

She fell in love with Marine Lieut. Andrew Bruce Moritz, who by accident was assigned as Miss Rabe's escort for festival activities.

The couple announced their engagement yesterday — after a 10-day courtship — at a "brunch" for the princesses at the Carlton Hotel.

Miss Rabe, who lives in New York City, is a professional model. Lieutenant Moritz, a native of Ipswich, S. Dak., has been in the Marine Corps eight years.

As the story goes, the escort first chosen for Miss Rabe turned out to be too short; Lieutenant Moritz then was chosen—and proved satisfactory.

To make it all complete, Frank E. Weakly, chairman of the "hospitality" committee of the festival and president of the Hotel Association of the District, offered the couple the bridal suite of the Carlton Hotel if the couple decides to spend part of their honeymoon in Washington.

No date for the wedding has been set yet.

Arlington Jail To Be Finished By Summer

By summer, Arlington County will have a brand-new modern 38-cell jail.

Replacing an antiquated brick structure on Courthouse square, the jail is going up on the third floor of the new courthouse annex.

Among innovations in the new jail, according to Sheriff Elwood P. Clements, will be an exercise yard, an infirmary cell that doubles as separate quarters for mental patients, and "day rooms" where prisoners can gather during the day.

The present jail has no exercise yard, and men must often wait several months in cramped cell quarters before the next term of court, Clements pointed out.

Clements expects to expand the jail's present literary offerings—a clotfull of tattered comics and Westerns—into a full-sized library, with the help of County Librarian Mrs. Mildred Blattner.

Most important of all, to the sheriff's way of thinking, is division of the new jail into eight separate cell blocks. This will permit segregation of habitual criminals from first offenders, juveniles and women from the rest of the jail population.

The new jail should put an end, too, to the "many and many" jail breaks and attempted breaks from the old building.

Visitors will talk to prisoners through a special speaking panel, through which not "even a hairpin," much less a hack saw, can be passed.

"They're not going to get out till we let 'em out," says Sheriff Clements. "But we hope they'll go out better citizens when they do."

Police Press Search for Store Killer

Working steadily—sifting and checking detail after detail—20 detectives yesterday continued the investigation into the Good Friday murders of two Lansburgh department store watchmen.

The day produced no breaks. Several persons were questioned and at least one man was requestioned. No one was booked, however.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation, meantime, received for laboratory analysis the sash cord used to bind one of the victims, 66-year-old John Carpenter. Also submitted to FBI technicians were samples of such cord sold by the downtown Washington store.

If the two match, it would constitute another fact to strengthen the theory that the murderer or murderers of Carpenter and his coworker, Oliver R. Hess, were familiar with the department store.

This was the hypothesis behind the questioning of several hundred store employes and former employes in the three-day investigation.

One possible lead in that direction was being explored—but without much enthusiasm—by homicide detectives late yesterday. It was a report that either Carpenter or Hess had mentioned to a workman about 9 p. m. Thursday that a store employe had not checked out.

Six maintenance workers were in the store until 9 p. m., cleaning out the basement. One of these men was being requestioned at police headquarters last night.

The only sure clews remaining in the case are fingerprints—a set found on a shoe of the brutally stabbed Carpenter and fingerprints on the murder weapon itself, a vicious, 8-inch-long boning knife taken from the kitchen of the store's mezzanine tearoom.

Lieut. Richard Belber, acting head of homicide, reported that so far his survey of District drycleaning establishments in search of blood-splattered clothing has turned up nothing.

His men working on the murders, Felber said, have been removed from any semblance of eight-hour shifts. They work on an assigned angle until its value is determined. If they're lucky, they get a few hours at home to eat.

A coroner's jury is expected to sworn in on the case today. This according to officials, means that the bodies of Hess and Carpenter can be released for burial.

ables submarines to remain submerged for long periods, is essentially a "breathing tube" that takes in air for the submarines' diesel engines. When high waves slap over the intake tube, valves automatically close and the engines momentarily draw air from the interior of the submarine.

Pre-snorkel submarines can operate on diesel engines only while fully surfaced. Submerged they run on batteries, and must surface at fairly frequent intervals to recharge the batteries.

The snorkel was developed by the Germans toward the end of World War II—too late to play a major role in U-boat raids on Allied shipping. Both the United States and Russian navies have copied and presumably attempted to improve on the German development.

Woman's Death Result Of Fall, Police Believe

Police yesterday began an investigation of the death of Grace Mae Frazier, 37, of 1828 Fort Myer dr., Arlington, who was found unconscious Thursday night in a room at the Hecht Hotel, 610 G st. nw. She died yesterday at Casualty Hospital.

Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, District Coroner, said an autopsy showed death was due to a cerebral hemorrhage, resulting from an injury, but there were no external marks. Police believe she may have fallen.

Md. GOP Parley Urged to Agree On Candidates

Baltimore, April 9 (AP).—State Senator Harry T. Phoebus of Somerset County today called for a State-wide Republican meeting to "agree on a candidate for Governor and United States Senator."

Phoebus, himself a potential candidate for the GOP gubernatorial nomination, made his appeal to Republican State Chairman Stanford Hoff, State Senator from Charles County.

It came on the eve of a scheduled meeting here of four other potential candidates for Governor who hope to put all their political eggs in one basket.

Phoebus was not invited to that conference nor does Hoff know anything about it officially. The four candidates to attend are D. John Markey of Frederick County; Royden A. Blunt of Baltimore and Howard County; State Senator Roy Davis of Montgomery County, and Thomas B. R. Mudd of Charles County.

Death Rate Drops On Highways In Virginia

Richmond, Va., April 9 (AP).—Death is really losing out on Virginia highways, says the Governor's Highway Safety Committee.

Actual fatalities keep increasing. There were 810 last year.

But the number of automobiles, the number of people, and the number of miles traveled are increasing faster. This means that comparatively speaking, there are actually fewer fatal accidents.

Oak Wilt Spreading

Oak wilt, dreaded destroyer of American forests, is spreading eastward from the Middle West, pathologists of the Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Plant Industry at Beltsville said yesterday.

They declined to guess when the scourge might enter the oak stands of the Eastern States, but said they would not be surprised if it happened within the next few years.

Naval Officer And Family Made Homeless in Fire

Fire swept a six-room home near Gaithersburg, Md., last evening, making homeless an officer at Bethesda Naval Medical Center, his wife and four children.

Victims of the blaze which wrecked four rooms are Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. W. H. Boswell, and their children, Judy 7; Wade, 6, and 4-year-old twins, Richard and James, who passed the night with neighbors.

The Gaithersburg-Washington Grove Volunteer Fire Department fought the fire more than an hour. Officials said it was caused by an overheated furnace. No damage estimate was available. The house, owned by Mrs. Leland Hendry of 3102 Ellicott st. nw., is 4 miles east of Gaithersburg on Redlands rd.

Before he could get a firm hold, David said, the top began spinning faster "and made a whistling noise and took off." It disappeared in less than 10 seconds, he added.

for unforeseen contingencies and put the Government on a pay-as-you-go basis.

In 1930 the national debt was only $16,185,000,000. It mounted as high as 269 billion dollars in 1946, and has dropped only three billion dollars since the war's end.

The Reed group noted that:

"Between March 31, 1949, and March 31, 1950, the Federal debt rose by $4,048,041,374. For the year July 1, 1950, to June 30, 1951, President Truman submitted a budget that would push up the debt by $5,133,000,000.

"Already the debt is equal to $6768 for every family of four persons in the country. The interest alone comes to $152 a year for every family, and this interest is paid only out of the taxpayers' sweat."

Joining Reed in the move are Representatives Roy O. Woodruff, Michigan; Thomas A. Jenkins, Ohio; Richard M. Simpson, Pennsylvania; Robert A. Kean, New Jersey; Thomas E. Martin, Iowa, and Carl T. Curtis, Nebraska.

Swimming Pools

Secretary Chapman has taken an arbitrary stand, in our opinion, by insisting that the six swimming pools under control of the Interior Department be operated on a non-segregated basis. If Mr. Chapman clings to this decision, the department will undoubtedly have to operate the pools itself, for the subcommittee of the District Recreation Board which has been negotiating with Interior is determined not to accept responsibility for operation of the pools on this basis. In other words, Interior will place itself in the position of imposing a policy upon the local community contrary to the better judgment of the local officials in charge of recreation policy and, we suspect, of a great majority of the people of the District.

Last year the Recreation Board announced a policy of gradual abandonment of segregation. We applauded this at the time as "a discreet and statesmanlike compromise." There is good reason to believe that the board intends to carry out this policy, but it cannot reasonably be asked suddenly to wipe out segregation at the point where joint use of facilities meets the greatest resistance. At the conference last week with Interior officials, Chairman Wender of the Recreation Board offered to operate McKinley pool for both white and Negro swimmers, with three other pools reserved for white persons and two for colored. That is a sensible compromise which demonstrates the sincerity of the board's announced policy and reduces to a minimum the risk of a recurrence of riots such as those which resulted in the closing of the Anacostia pool last summer.

The Interior Department could not keep the pools closed all summer without producing a justified explosion in the community. Nor could it operate all of them on a non-segregated basis without provoking new racial tension and risking worse disorders than occurred last year. The department has done its duty in laying down the general principle of nonsegregation, and it can continue to make its influence felt by requiring a gradual approach to that objective. But it cannot take an adamant and extreme stand without injuring the cause that it seeks to promote. Better race relations are not fostered by dictation in such matters to local committees, nor by the sudden enforcement of rules that are certain to incite interracial animosities. In the absence of agreement, the best thing the department can do is to turn the pools over to the board for operation in accord with its more realistic policy.

Taxing Travel Expenses

A Federal Court decision declaring that Federal employes are not entitled to deduct work-connected travel expenses from their taxable income would, if enforced, result in an avalanche of claims for back taxes. Since the decision conflicts with a provision of the revenue law specifically stating that such deductions are applicable to public employes, Jerry Kluttz thinks there is a "distinct possibility" that the Bureau of Internal Revenue will instruct collectors to ignore this surprising judicial pronouncement. If the decision should be upheld by the Supreme Court, remedial legislation would be required to protect the right of Federal employes to equality of treatment under the income-tax laws.

No doubt the Government loses a good deal of revenue through the padding of expense accounts, but the average Government worker is probably quite as conscientious as the average person in private employment in making his income-tax declarations. Certainly there is no excuse for denying him the right accorded other citizens to obtain tax credits for uncompensated business expenses.

If Federal employes were given adequate expense allowances when traveling for business purposes, it might be desirable to refuse them permission to deduct out-of-pocket expenses. But Government travel allowances are notoriously niggardly, and most Government employes spend more than they receive. To deny them the right to treat these excess outlays as deductible business expenditures for income-tax purposes would be to pile injustice atop of injustice. Moreover, travel expenses are not the only business-connected deductions affected by the new Federal ruling. Scientists, economists and other experts in Government service incur expenses as members of professional organizations and subscribers to technical publications that enhance their knowledge and usefulness to their employer. These, too, are business expenses that the public official has as much right to consider deductible as the man or woman in private employment.

Interstate Crime

The underworld has given a big push to the proposed "full and complete" investigation of criminal gangs operating across State boundaries. Just as the Senate seemed to be getting cold feet last week new sensational evidence of corruption and gangland operations burst upon the front pages. Right here in the vicinity of the Capital, R. Earle Sheriff, former sheriff of Prince Georges County, pleaded guilty to evading the payment of income taxes on protection money received from gamblers. According to the account of Sheriff's operations presented to the court, he hid in a safety deposit box $22,000 received from "runners" for gambling interests. It is understood that the tip as to this official's unreported income came from District Attorney Fay as a result of a gambling raid that reached across the District line. Here is a made-to-order sample of the kind of lawlessness reaching across State lines that Congress ought to look into.

Far more serious from the national point of view is the outbreak of gang warfare in Kansas City. The country does not yet know the full meaning of the slaying of Charles Binaggio, North Side Democratic chieftain and his "top muscle-man," Charles Garotta. But Kansas politicians are saying that the pair suffered a gangland penalty for failing to keep a promise that they would open Kansas City and the State of Missouri to interstate criminal syndicates. The St. Louis Star-Times says that underworld bosses had poured between $100,000 and $200,000 into the 1948 Missouri Democratic campaign on Binaggio's assurance that they would be given a fertile field in which to operate. If these charges are true, it would be suicidal for any government to close its eyes to the link between politics and underworld operations.

The first reaction of some Democratic Senators has been that investigation of this scandalous situation might be politically dangerous. The same thought undoubtedly occurred to President Coolidge back in 1923, when the stench of the oil scandals first became evident in Washington. But Mr. Coolidge concluded that the only safe and honorable course his Administration could take was to probe to the bottom of the scandals, expose the guilty parties and prosecute them. He appointed Owen J. Roberts as special prosecutor for that purpose. It was the only course that could have saved President Coolidge from being himself dragged into the scandal. Had he attempted to cover up for the looters, it is impossible to believe that he would have won the election in 1924.

In our opinion, the rule followed by President Coolidge is the only sound one for any statesman or any political party in a democratic land. Let the facts be known; let the guilty be punished. Politicians always try to blacken their opponents with the misdeeds of the lawless or lunatic fringe that seems to cling to every party. Their efforts are likely to be taken seriously by the public only if party leaders implicate themselves by trying to cover up the dirt, crime, or scandal in question. For this reason it seems to us amazing that the fresh evidence of the need for a genuine probe into interstate criminal operations should cast doubt upon its being ordered by the Senate.

What the situation demands is obviously an intensive inquiry directed by experts in the field—not mere hearings on the Attorney General's bills, such as those now scheduled by a Senate Interstate and Foreign Commerce Subcommittee. The Federal obligation cannot be discharged by applying a couple of patches before the extent of lawlessness beyond the reach of the States is known. Let the investigation be ordered promptly with assurance that the best expert available will be hired to direct its course.

Nijinsky

In some ways the famous dancer Vaslav Nijinsky seems a typical figure of our age; and perhaps that is why he continued to excite the interest of the world under circumstances in which other men are, alas, quickly forgotten. For the last 30 years of his life Nijinsky was more or less insane and for a time his case seemed utterly beyond hope. The disease from which he suffered—schizophrenia, or fragmentation of the personality—is said to be the characteristic modern malady, afflicting not only individuals, but also, if we can trust such critics as Dr. Max Picard and Prof. Siegfried Giedion, our art and literature and even our society. It is interesting to recall that "controlled schizophrenia" was the description given by Dr. Klaus Fuchs of the state of mind that enabled the Jekyll side of his nature to live on terms of friendship and even affection with those whom his Hyde personality was betraying in cold blood. And most of us, while managing to avoid the mystical dementia of Nijinsky and the rationalistic dementia of Dr. Fuchs, do nevertheless cherish inner affirmations that we deny implicitly in our conduct.

There was, to be sure, nothing "controlled" about Nijinsky. From the history of his case it seems obvious that the proximate cause of his madness lay in an exquisite sensibility combined with a deep-rooted sense of guilt. If most of us do not go mad from thinking of the horrors of war, of concentration camps and the other wholesale barbarities of our age, it is because of some faculty that permits us to close them out of our imaginations. From the realization of evil Nijinsky passed to the realization of sin, which produced the crisis that overwhelmed him. In his sight the First World War was a punishment visited upon the brilliant, decadent, hedonistic society, whose pampered favorite he had become, and of which he now seemed to himself the symbol. He talked incessantly of repentance, gave away all his money, his paintings and costly curios and even his clothes and went to live in a shabby garret room.

This phase of his conduct at least was literally evangelical, and in an analogous crisis St. Francis of Assisi had behaved in somewhat similar fashion. Nijinsky, however, was living in the twentieth century Soon afterward he was confined in the private madhouse in Switzerland where he was to remain for 20 years, only to emerge into a world as full of horrors as the one from which he had been removed. Meanwhile, however, he had made the acquaintance of new and unimagined horrors, such as the insulin shock treatments.

Peron's Spots

Apparently the Peronista government of Argentina has been making a strenuous effort to convince the United States that it is changing its spots. Apparently, too, the State Department is enough persuaded of Peron's sincerity to favor various sorts of economic assistance to rescue his country from its financial straits. Indeed, Argentine Finance Minister Ramon Cereijo seems to have conducted a whirlwind courtship during his stay in Washington, and his presence here seems to be the one constructive result of the Inter-American Economic and Social Council meeting.

There can be no doubt that Argentina has suffered internally from the plundering and mismanagement of her ousted economic czar, Miguel Miranda. Graft was Miranda's byword; he sought to establish it on an international scale by blackmailing needy foreign nations with paying outrageous prices for Argentine food. His hijacking scheme collapsed, and Argentine economic free wheeling came to an abrupt halt with a 200-million-dollar debt. As for trade with the United States, this dwindled to nothing for want of dollars, and Argentine factories and farms are now badly in need of United States machinery.

The Argentine attitude now is represented as one of sweet reason. She wants private credits arranged through the Export-Import Bank to fund her dollar debts, and she also wants more farm machinery on credit. In return she already has eased the situation of American firms in Argentina and is reported to be willing to sign treaties covering private investment and double taxation.

Readers of this newspaper will know that it has no love for Peron or his methods. At the same time, we have never believed that Argentina should be made a permanent pariah in the hemisphere. The important consideration governing better Argentine-United States relations is for Argentina to live up to her international obligation and take a responsible part in hemisphere affairs. The first step in this connection ought to be ratification of the Rio Defense Treaty, and it is regrettable that Secretary Acheson did not make a point of this at his press conference. That treaty was signed 2½ years ago and has become the basis for the hemisphere security organization; yet Argentina has dallied unpardonably. Prompt approval of the treaty would be the best earnest of Peron's intentions. There is utterly no warrant to bribe him with American economic help. Along with ratification of the treaty, there ought to be pledges that Argentina will cease the economic bullying and political subversion it has carried on among its neighbors.

Moreover, even if some assistance is granted on practical grounds, Americans ought not to be taken in by bland Argentine assurances with respect to repressions in that country. The denials of civil liberties, the suppression of political opposition, and the muzzling of the press are disturbing to many Americans, for they mean that there is no internal check to Peron's incipient troublemaking outside his frontiers. It is true that the newspapers La Prensa and La Nacion will receive all the newsprint they need if the dollar position is relieved. However, this will mean nothing if other petty persecutions and interferences continue.

If economic assistance is justified, it will be justified in the same way that the help to Yugoslavia is justified—it is in the American interest to have a working relationship with Argentina. At best, economic understanding can only pave the way for political understanding. The rest will be up to Peron.

Layoffs Again

From Williamson, W. Va., comes news that about 400 miners and other employes of nearby coal-mining companies have been laid off. The reason? No orders. No doubt we shall be hearing of more such layoffs as depleted coal supplies are built up, and we hope that Congress will be reminded that settlement of the coal strike did not solve the problem of coal overproduction.

The coal industry cannot provide full-time work for all miners, and John L. Lewis' misguided effort to solve the problem of overproduction by strikes and part-time work drives home the need for some action to eliminate marginal high cost mines and enable the remaining coal companies to provide full-time work for a smaller working force.

The Government not only lacks proper machinery for dealing with the labor disputes that have demoralized the industry, it has made no effort to correct the conditions that are largely responsible for such disorders. The President has recommended that Congress set up a commission to make a study of the coal industry "in terms of economic, social and national security." Unless Congress responds to that appeal, the country might as well be prepared for another round of strikes and renewed efforts on the part of John L. Lewis to spread the work by shortening the working week.

Irish Partition

I am no politician; only a rather bewildered housewife who read with great dismay in the March 30 Belfast Newsletter that the American House of Representatives voted to "stop all Marshall aid to Britain until partition of Ireland is ended." This from the Representatives of the people whose sons we took into our hearts and homes when they were stationed in Northern Ireland.

Do they not realize that we in Ulster wish to remain an integral part of Great Britain? Surely we have made that quite clear for many years and also no later than the last general election here when we still voted at least 75 percent Unionist. When will you Americans realize that this partition which the Irish-Americans and Southern-Irish speak so much against was not put up by England, but by Eire itself?

In Ulster in recent years we have had thousands from Erie forced to come to the industrial north for work and better conditions generally. All who can, stay. It must be quite plain to you why Eire covets Ulster and why it seems that she will go to any lengths to get it.

EILEEN BOYD.
Donaghadee, County Down, Northern Ireland.

If the citizens of Eire really wish to end partition, we shall be pleased to see their members back at Westminster, provided they will undertake to act as good citizens of the British Commonwealth of Nations.

Eire is not happy. Her waning population numbers less than three million persons; if this increased by 50 percent, it would equal the English county of Lancashire. This ought to be an era of great prosperity for Ireland, for all her products command high prices and unlimited markets; yet wealth per head remains low. Out of a penurious budget of 81 million pounds, the Eire exchequer has for the past year a deficit of seven millions.

North Ireland is a small territory with a population of one-and-a-third million, less than half that of Eire. So great, however, is its native energy, that the output per head is eight times that of South Ireland. What a place to plunder! Here is wealth to be taxed, industries to serve the government, shipbuilding yards that a firm dictatorship might make its own.

Soldiers' Home

In connection with the proposed division of the Soldiers' Home grounds, there are certain aspects which certainly do not meet with my approval.

The sum of money which has now been allocated for improvement of the Soldiers' Home property is a part of a larger sum of 30 million dollars "surplus." How did the home acquire this surplus? Do not the personnel of the United States Army contribute to a fund which creates this surplus?

If the United States Government holds title to the grounds, it unquestionably has authority to divide it up, but if money is provided by the soldiers themselves for upkeep of the home, would it not be better to allow the soldiers to buy the part of the grounds which they have not been assigned, rather than take chances on a future "land grab?"

What right has any agency of the Government to assign Government land to a private party without charge? These hospitals solicit money from private charity, from the United States Government, they charge D. C. for nonpay patients, and then if I, as an individual, wish hospital care, I must pay the regular rate. So, whether I wish it or no, I must contribute to the support of the hospitals. So let's have a statement on the authority to assign this land for a proposed medical center.

Certainly the old soldiers are entitled to a permanent home if they so desire, and the action taken to divide the property seems high-handed, to say the least.

More On McCarthy

As a citizen and a voter I want to express gratitude for the just and courageous position The Washington Post has maintained in the affaire McCarthy. Through your news reportage, your editorials, and Herblock's inimitable and devastating cartoons you have upheld decency, fair play and democratic processes.

I share with many other fair-minded people with whom I have talked the hope that you will urge impeachment of the man who has so conclusively proved his unfitness to hold a seat in the United States Senate. Such an act may help those whose good names the Senator from Wisconsin has so ruthlessly besmirched and restore in a measure the damage done our country in the eyes of the world.

Transit Fare Hearings

Tuesday's hearings before the Public Utilities Commission on the request of the Capital Transit Co. for a fare increase were little short of disgraceful. The commission called on organizations to testify even before the company had presented its case!

Our organization came to listen to Capital Transit in order to find reasons for the company's request for a fare increase. What did we find instead? The chairman of the PUC called on us. We read a statement. This shocking procedure by the commission makes one wonder whether the commission's aim in holding these perfunctory "hearings" is to give the impression that the voteless citizens of Washington are not concerned with the question; or to load the case in favor of the Capital Transit Co.

If the company is permitted to do away with the weekly pass and charge a flat rate of 15 cents a ride, it will really be equivalent to a wage cut of $2 per week for the working people of this city. And already Mr. Heberle, vice president of the Capital Transit Co., indicates that if the decline in traffic continues the 15-cent fare and the elimination of the weekly pass will be inadequate!

The public has a choice. We don't want higher fares. It is the job of the Public Utilities Commission to protect our interests. The PUC should give all who wish an opportunity to testify after Capital Transit has presented its case.

Nathaniel Weyl On "Treason"

Your April 2 edition carried Alfred Steinberg's unfortunate review of Treason, by Nathaniel Weyl. I have followed critical comment carefully because I edited and cut the manuscript. Mr. Steinberg has, I fear, misrepresented the contents of the book and the views of the author.

To take the less important matter first, Steinberg states: "Mr. Weyl covers the Hiss, Coplon and Communist trials, although a legal definition of treason would have excluded all three from a book so titled, no matter what one thinks of the parties involved." The implication of unfairness is unmistakable. But what are the facts? The subtitle of Weyl's book is "The Story of Disloyalty and Betrayal in American History." Although it is printed in large type on the jacket and frontispiece, its existence evidently eluded your reviewer's attention.

If Steinberg had taken the trouble to read the first page of the foreword, he would have observed that the author specifically says that neither Miss Coplon nor Mr. Hiss can be considered traitors under the Constitution. This point is repeated in Chapter 24 and again in Chapter 25. Pages 421-423 are devoted to a discussion of the relationship between pro-Soviet espionage and treason. Mr. Steinberg must have overlooked, among other things, Weyl's observation: "Over a century ago, Chief Justice John Marshall pointed out that the charge of treason, since it had such immense power to rouse public passions, should not be leveled against persons accused of lesser offenses. This seems a commonsense rule and the present writer has tried to follow it."

The really serious matter, however, is that Steinberg jumps from Weyl's statement that "treason under the Constitution is a betrayal of a free society" to the unambigious implication that the writer advocates "undermining our own freedom" and that his theories logically lead to "thought control." This is not only absurd; it is untrue. Nowhere in the book is there either a recommendation or a hint that the constitutional definition of treason be amended to impair American freedom. Throughout, the author shows sedulous concern for the preservation of individual liberty, particularly when the exigencies of war or quasi-war call for a degree of statemanship and commonsense which are all too frequently absent.

On page 9, for example, Weyl says: "In the crisis of the Napoleonic Wars, the Jeffersonian faith in the capacity of a free society to protect its very existence without surrendering its freedom was vindicated. We can both hope and believe that our generation will succeed in meeting a similar test."

I have reread all the reviews of Treason available to me in order to determine whether other critics shared Mr. Steinberg's bizarre misconstructions. None does. Merle Miller comments correctly in the New York Times that "He (Weyl) believes this country is fortunate that the leaders of the Constitutional Convention . . . defined the crime with such unequivocal clarity. Broadening that definition may, he thinks, be a danger to our democratic system." In a 4000-word article-review of the book featured in the Saturday Review of Literature, Elmer Davis never at any point attributes views to Weyl comparable to those which your reviewer imagines.

In short, the complaint is not that your reviewer is hostile, but that his interpretations are false. He attributes to the author opinions in fact opposite to those Weyl explicitly states. A reviewer should be a window on a book, not a fog between author and reader

Matter of Fact

By Joseph Alsop

Porridge And Bombs

VIENNA.—Here in this ancient, lovely city, a new life is precariously growing up amid the splendid ruins of the proud dead past. This is the most hopeful phenomenon in Europe. Even where the destruction was worst and the difficulties have been greatest, as in Germany and Austria, this new life has now boldly appeared like the bright weed that clambers over the bombed-out parts of London.

Here in Vienna, however, there is also more than a hint of a grim future that will utterly crush out this new European life. There is evidence, in fact, that the development of the Soviet atomic bomb was the beginning of a new, different and more threatening Kremlin campaign to win Western Europe for the Soviet empire.

The evidence is composed of a peculiar set of facts. In brief, by the spring of last year, the Kremlin at last got ready to grant a peace treaty to Austria. This would have meant the evacuation of Austria by Soviet and Allied forces, as well as requiring the evacuation of the Soviet forces on the "line of communications" in Hungary and Romania. The United States particularly was willing to pay high for such an Austrian treaty.

THERE WAS MUCH evidence, besides the actual course of the negotiations, to indicate that the Soviets genuinely intended to give Austria a treaty and to get out. For example, part of the price the Kremlin demanded was continuing ownership of the Austrian industries stolen on the excuse that they were former German assets. Last spring USIA, the vast Soviet cartel in which these industries have been organized, began hastily improving the quantities and qualities of its products for sale here. The announced purpose was to hold a share of the Austrian market after the Russian withdrawal.

Then, suddenly, the treaty negotiations slowed. The questions of the "pea debt" was raised. This is a debt for dried peas sent to feed the starving population of Vienna as "a gift from Stalin" in the bad time after the war. Chancellor Figl is said to have remarked that, being wormy, these peas were particularly valuable, since they provided both meat and vegetable courses. At any rate, in September, 1949, Zarubin broke off the Austrian treaty negotiations over this matter of peas. Thus the Russian occupation of eastern Austria, including Vienna, still continues.

This sudden change of the Kremlin's plan, so thinly concealed by so ludicrous a pretext, oddly coincided with certain other events of great importance. (It was in the late summer of 1949 that the order was given to transform the para-military units of the east German police force into a full-fledged new German army.

There is only one event that can explain all the simultaneous and puzzling developments—the sudden, successful Soviet development of a "people's democratic atomic bomb." All the other currently popular explanations, such as the decision to proceed with the Atlantic Pact, are ruled out by wrong timing. And there are special reasons to believe that the success with the atomic bomb was a great turning point in Kremlin policy.

IF THIS RECONSTRUCTION of the past is correct, the Kremlin was preparing, in the spring of 1949, to recognize a sort of temporary status quo in Europe. The Marshall Plan was succeeding. The West retained its atomic monopoly. It was not yet apparent that the policy of rearming the West of the late James V. Forrestal had been abandoned by his successor, Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson.

Confronted with these "hard conditions of fact" the Kremlin seems to have been ready to withdraw from Austria, to abandon its pressure campaigns elsewhere, and to leave Europe in peace until the Soviet empire could be further strengthened, consolidated and prepared. Then came the success with the atomic bomb, so much sooner than the Western intelligences, and probably the Kremlin as well, had expected.

This success put into the Kremlin's hands an incomparable instrument for terrifying western Europe into ultimate submission. As Hitler took the Rhineland and Austria, Danzig and Czechoslavkia by mere threats of force, without firing a shot, so the Kremlin could now hope to employ the same tactics on a far larger scale, in the far weaker and less resistant Europe at this time after the second World War.

In any such campaign of terror, Berlin is the obvious first stage. Equally obvious, Vienna, on which the Soviets can close their grip in eight hours' time, is the next potential scene for a great demonstration of Russian strength and Western weakness. Soviet triumphs in Berlin and Vienna would alone be enough to provoke an almost irresistible urge of appeasement in every western European country. Yugoslavia would still remain as a third potential object lesson.

By utmost firmness we can still turn back the present Soviet attack on Berlin. But by next year, if the armed power of the Soviet Union and the strength of the West continue to diverge at the present rate, there will be nothing to obstruct a plan for frightening western Europe into surrender. It is time, it is past time, for us to decide whether we wish to risk losing this cold war without a battle being fought. That is the danger now ahead.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Dulles Comes Back

THE RETURN of John Foster Dulles is most welcome, coming as it does at a time when it is so necessary to work out the main lines of a new phase of United States foreign policy. Only unscrupulous politicians will refuse to support an unpartisan approach. Nothing but disaster can come of a failure of the parties to collaborate. But this second movement to adjourn politics at the water's edge will be more difficult than was the first.

Lippmann

FOR in the first movement, which will always be associated with Senator Vandenberg, the main lines of policy were reasonably clear to informed men of good will in both parties. The task of bipartisanship was to find the compromises on details which would enlist the widest support for measures — the United Nations, the Marshall Plan, the North Atlantic Security Pact—on which there was already wide agreement in principle.

But now, owing to the great developments in the outer world itself, the problem is to find the principles and the main lines of action which the change in the situation calls for. Assuming the will to agree, the hard task is to work out great policies, which are not yet worked out, on which men should agree, to which the people will rally. In the highest councils of the Government—in Congress and in the Administration—there will have to be what Mr. Churchill recently called "exalted brooding"—in plain words hard and original thinking about the new situation which is developing.

ALL SORTS of things have happened that were not anticipated even a year ago. But there is, I believe, a pattern which when we study it indicates that in this new period our main business is to decide what we believe should be the role of Germany and Japan in the world. These two naturally and permanently powerful nations have been the big stakes for which the cold war has been waged. In the new phase of history, which we are now entering, they will reappear as principal great powers. The highest task of the makers of policy is to conceive and develop a picture of the role which the Germans and the Japanese can and will play as they recover their sovereignty and their independence.

As yet there is an assumption on both sides of the iron curtain that the defeat and prostration of the German and the Japanese nations has extinguished them as principal powers. This is, I believe, an illusion which is now going to be shattered. The Soviet form of the illusion is that Germany and Japan can become satellites, or at least junior allies, of the Muscovite empire. The Western form of this illusion is that Germany and Japan can be integrated—fitted into—a political system of which the headquarters are in Washington and London. Both views are based on the same fundamental fallacy—namely that the two powerful peoples who so very nearly became masters of the world can be forced or induced to accept an unimportant position in the world.

IN FACT, however, the struggle for Germany and Japan will restore, indeed is restoring, their political power. There is, therefore, nothing so important as to anticipate the part that Germany will play in Europe and that Japan will play in the Far East as they recover their sovereignty and their independence. Much, perhaps everything, will depend upon whether Moscow or Washington—London—Paris—is first able to identify its policy with the purposes which enlist the national energies of these two peoples. Any policy which in the last analysis denies them a really important role in the world is sure to fail. For they are strong peoples who will surely play again an important role in the world.

Though it is difficult, perhaps impossible, to discern their role and mission clearly and in all its consequences, I believe that geography, history, economics, the strategic consequences of atomic warfare, all indicate that the destiny of Germany and Japan is to occupy a middle position between Russia and the Atlantic powers. That is the position that they have occupied—in the case of Germany for centuries—in that of Japan since she became a modern nation.

What brought them both to catastrophic defeat was the lust of conquest which caused Germany twice and Japan once to sacrifice the advantages of their growing power in the middle. But they are still in the middle. They will always be there. If they are to have a future which serves their own vital interests and is compatible with the interests of mankind, they will have to think of themselves again as middle powers.

IT IS, I think, demonstrable that in this era of atomic weapons Germany and Japan—both the perfect targets of atomic bombs—can find even a measure of security only if they exploit their middle position, and make themselves—as great powers—mediators, barriers and buffers between the giant powers.

This is their necessary role in this age. It is, one might say, their historic mission which, were inspired leaders to rise, could enlist their best energies and satisfy their legitimate and their highest aspirations to redemption from the evil past and to greatness in the future.

A Communication

U. S. Aid And World Economic Imbalance

By Dr. J. H. Richter

Dr. Richter is the head of the European Division of the Office of Foreign Agricultural Relations. The opinions expressed in this communication are his own and do not necessarily reflect official views or policies.

THERE ARE few questions of concern to economists and policy-makers that are more impatiently asked than the questions that have to do with the so-called dollar-gap, "balance-of-payments difficulties"—in short, the imbalance in international economic relations. What does this imbalance signify? What would its elimination imply?

In following the questions asked and the answers given it has seemed to me that there is a fundamental relationship between production, on the one hand, and consumption and home investment, on the other, that has not been sufficiently stressed in the explanations for the phenomenon. Yet, this fundamental relationship determines not only the nature of the problem but also the type of solution feasible. It indicates the range of the possibilities. The rigid premises implied in that interrelationship yield definite conclusions as to what we must expect if we do one thing, and what we cannot expect if we do another.

THAT the United States has a chronic surplus in its balance of payments only means that the United States currently produces more than its people choose to consume and invest of their own volition. If one takes the position that investment—running at 15 percent of the national income—is sufficient, consumption in relation to output is too low. If there were to be an increase in the propensity to consume (the consumption function) the excess of production would tend to disappear. As a result, the surplus in the balance of payments would also tend to disappear, since it is the excess of production over consumption and home investment that creates the surplus in the balance of payments.

In view of the great producing capacity of the United States, it would not be surprising if the consumption function gradually were to rise. A measure of increase in what might be called collective consumption, policies to improve living standards in underprivileged areas and social groups; and intensified social security programs would all be developments that raise the consumption function and are not unnatural for the stage of economic evolution that the United States has reached.

Also, the United States may wish to strengthen its defenses considerably (which might well be the most promising investment the country could make). It is a matter of terminology whether we would call that an increase in collective consumption or in investments. In the latter case we would say that the present rate of investment is too low; its increase, so far as it goes, would obviate the need for an increase in the consumption function.

THE OVERSEAS countries who have a chronic balance of payments deficit vis-a-vis the United States are in the opposite position. If they are taken as a whole, it appears that their production is too small to support present levels of consumption and investment. Since investment—running in some countries between 10 and 20 percent of the national income—cannot be considered excessive in view of the need for reconstruction and further economic development, it is consumption that appears too high in relation to production. Hence, those countries' consumption function seems too high.

With a gradual reduction in the consumption function, the balance of payments deficit—which is a reflection of the excess of consumption and investment over production—would disappear. Similarly an increase in production in the countries outside the United States could eliminate both the dollar deficit and the deficit of production in relation to consumption and investment.

IF I had to make a forecast of what actually will happen in international economic relations during the next several years, I would express the belief that the imbalance in the relations between the dollar area and the nondollar area will be corrected mainly through larger production and larger trade outside the United States. There might be a slight increase in the consumption function (and possibly a substantial increase in defense investment) in the United States and a slight decrease in the consumption function, or the standard of living, in some countries outside the United States. Such developments would imply a measurable reduction in American exports and some increase in American expenditure abroad on imports and services, including travel. (Such changes in trade of the dollar area may be partly changes in volume, partly changes in the terms of trade.)

Europe's commerce with South America, Africa and the Far East would generally expand. American grants and loans to all foreign countries combined would probably taper off, but would still be maintained at a relatively high level for the next several years; this aid would include United States Government or Government - guaranteed investments abroad. Such an outflow of United States funds would probably bridge the time needed for the more permanent correctives to work themselves out. Such would be my belief provided, of course, that there is no war.

THE CONTINUATION of large-scale United States grants to foreign countries is, however, a possibility that cannot altogether be excluded. To the extent that there is an outflow of funds—and one never can be sure from one year to the next whether or not, or to what extent, it will be continued—it is a factor of instability rather than stability. Such a temporary prop to consumption abroad cannot be built into the permanent income structure of the receiving countries, precisely because of its ephemeral character. To the extent that such a flow of funds would be a permanent part of the United States economic foreign policy the situation would, of course, be different.

It is interesting to note that suggestions made for surplus disposal, such as the International Commodity Clearing House, even though rejected, have not altogether been eliminated from discussion. I do not think that there is as yet a basic philosophy behind either acceptance or rejection of such proposals whose realization would be tantamount to a permanent subsidization of foreign countries by the United States.

However, there is one thought which might subconsciously play a role in the attitude of some American economists and policy-makers: it is the idea that an outflow of funds from the United States to the rest of the world in some way acknowledges the greater endowment of this country with natural resources in relation to population, when compared to poorer countries overseas.

Given immobility of populations as among countries, which prevents migrations toward areas of more abundant resources, foreign trade is a means of making more equitable the sharing of natural resources throughout the world. Given all sorts of political and economic impediments to foreign trade—including in this international disproportions in consumption and investment—the idea of a United States subsidy to close the dollar gap is not altogether an absurd one, especially if the political ramifications of such a policy are taken into account.

Major Barriers Stand in Way Of Organic Unity for Labor

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

Formidable obstacles stand in the way of CIO President Phil Murray's recent call for labor unity.

Murray suggested that the Nation's great labor organizations form a joint committee for a common program in the legislative economic and political fronts, with a view toward achieving ultimate organic unity.

The response has been cordial. The AFL's William Green seems personally to like the idea. John L. Lewis approves, which means his United Mine Workers will also approve. Al Hayes, who heads the International Association of Machinists, is for it. And a general expression of sympathy—for the record—is likely to be forthcoming from the big railroad brotherhoods.

Least likely is organic unity among the labor organizations. The CIO, UMW anad IAM were all part of the AFL at one time or another, and broke away for varying reasons, al lof which would tend to block not only organic unity, but legislative and economic agreement as well.

For example, the Congress of Industrial Organizations was originally a "committee" within the American Federation of Labor, whose leaders believed in the mid-thirties that the time was ripe for a tremendous organizing drive among the semi-skilled workers of the auto, steel, glass, rubber and other mass production workers.

The ruling group within the AFL, however, was not prepared to break down traditional lines of organization by skills and crafts, so the CIO pulled out.

John L. Lewis and the UMW led the CIO rebellion, and in turn withdrew from the CIO several years later in a split over President Roosevelt's Administration. Lewis marched backed back into the AFL only to "disaffiliate" again in a clash with the AFL council over legislative policy.

The Machinists' broke away from the AFL after a long and unhealing dispute with the Carpenters over jurisdiction. The IAM would like to return to the fold of the federation founded by Samuel Gompers, but the AFL can't seem to find a solution to the feud with the Carpenters.

As for the score or so Railroad Brotherhoods, some of these are in the AFL and some are not. Most of the brotherhoods get along well with the AFL. Some are on bitter terms with CIO affiliates over organizing rivalries.

More than any other factor in modern times, the Taft-Hartley Act has driven the labor unions together to fight a common enemy. Yet, even faced with this burning issue, labor has not been united.

The CIO has opposed T-H in its entirety; the AFL has, privately at least, acceded to parts of the Taft-Hartley Act; Lewis has proved he can ignore the law, and T-H affects the railroad brotherhoods only in principle, since they operate under another labor relations statute.

The big labor groups have worked together in helping set up the anti-Communist World Confederation of Free Trade Unions, but—on the top level—that is just about all they've done together.

On the operational level, the unions had undertaken common political action with the tacit, although not the official, okay of the ranking officers. In this field, progress has been made toward labor unity. In New York City, for example, the AFL and CIO have set up a permanent United Labor Committee for action on the political front. Similar joint action has been taken in a number of other industrial cities and States.

But even in the political field, the labor organizations have a long way to go before a harmonious program can be worked out. One reason labor did not pick a candidate to oppose Senator Robert A. Taft in Ohio was that the union leaders were unable to agree on the candidate.

And even assuming all the legislative, economic and political hurdles could be jumped, who would head up one great American labor federation?

Just name a candidate—and you've got a fight on your hands.

Fouad a Brother Of Bride-elect of King, Paper Says

Amman, Hashemite Jordan, April 9 (AP).—The Arabic newspaper Annadah today identified the new husband of Princess Faikah of Egypt as a brother of Narriman Sadek, who is reported to be the prospective bride of King Farouk.

However, Princess Fathia, younger sister of the bride, said in San Francisco that the bridegroom, Fouad Sadek, was "no relation at all" to Narriman.

Informants familiar with Middle Eastern customs say a marriage of the Egyptian Monarch's sister to a brother of Miss Sadek would facilitate the wedding of the King to the commoner. Such a marriage, the informants say, would make Miss Sadek a member of Egyptian royalty.

Princess Faikah was married to Fouad secretly in San Francisco Wednesday. Fouak has been identified only as a member of the Egyptian consular service. He and his bride left Los Angeles Friday for a honeymoon cruise to Hawaii.

What's the STRENGTH of a Bank?

Just as an aeronautical engineer has his methods of rating strength, so a corporation treasurer knows how to size up the financial strength of a bank from its balance sheet. We hope all treasurers will study ours.

But there's more to a bank than a balance sheet can show. For instance, we recognize an obligation to make bank service increasingly useful to the people of Washington. We believe there's room in banking for vision and imagination, and these, too, can be factors of strength.

Our concept of bank service expresses itself in our efforts to encourage business and industry by finding speedy and helpful answers to their problems; in our efforts to promote general employment by making loans for constructive commercial and individual purposes.

In short, our aim is to give banking service over and beyond the routine. If that's what your business needs, why don't you ask for it . . . at the Union Trust?

President to Lead Gonzalez Welcome

President Truman will lead citizens of the District in a gala welcome to President Gabriel Gonzalez-Videla of Chile when the Chilean chief executive arrives here Wednesday afternoon.

President Gonzalez is scheduled to arrive in President Truman's own plane, the Independence, at 3 p. m. at the National Airport, where the two chief executives will meet.

Accompanied by his wife, daughter, son-in-law and several top Chilean officials, he will receive as festive a welcome as Washington has given any foreign dignitary, according to the Commissioners' reception committee.

The good will visit is the result of an invitation sent to President Gonzales last year by President Truman—who is expected to return it, probably by journeying to southern Chile for the opening of that nation's first big steel mill, according to the Chilean Embassy.

The welcome to President Gonzales will begin with a brief ceremony at the airport, followed by a motor parade into the city over a flag-bedecked and arch-covered route by way of the Memorial Bridge and Constitution ave.

The District's reception program, including a welcoming address by President John Russell Young of the Board of Commissioners, will take place at a stand in front of the District Building.

In honor of the distinguished visitor from Chile, Federal employes and those District employes in the parade area will be released from work during the afternoon.

Two large arches, with color photographs of the visitor and welcoming signs in English and Spanish, as well as Chilean colors, will decorate the Memorial Bridge and Post Square.

Flags and welcoming signs will also fly from downtown lamp posts, streetcars and buses and several buildings. Some 20,000 sets of flags will be distributed to children attending the festivities. More than 600 District National Guardsmen will participate.

Following the District's welcoming program, which is scheduled to begin at 2:30 p. m. and continue until 4, the Presidential parties will continue by way of 15th st. and Pennsylvania ave. to Blair House. There President Gonzalez will be the dinner guest of President Truman.

On Friday, Pan American Day, the Chilean president will give a reception at the Pan American Union and will speak at the Press Club that night. The party will leave Saturday for New York and visits to other cities.

Aid for Family

Friends Band For Memorial To Dr. Drew

Legal technicalities to incorporate the Charles R. Drew Memorial Foundation, Inc., were being completed yesterday as a living monument to the physician-scientist who died in a traffic accident last Saturday.

After funeral services were completed Wednesday, 39 associates and friends of Dr. Drew, who was chief surgeon at Freedmen's Hospital and professor of surgery at Howard University, voted to incorporate the foundation. At the same meeting, at Howard University, more than $2500 was subscribed in gifts.

Dr. R. Frank Jones, professor of urology at Howard, chairman of the foundation, said its first object is to purchase a home for Dr. Drew's widow and four children. He said that Dr. Drew had an endowment plan, toward which he devoted more than half his income, that will feed and clothe the family on a modest scale, as well as educate the children. But a home will be necessary, Dr. Jones said, to see the family safely through at present living costs.

After the home is purchased, Dr. Jones said, additional contributions will go toward "continuing the outstanding research work" which Dr. Drew carried on.

Of the 39 incorporators, Dr. Jones said, 20 are from Washington and 19 from outside the city.

Other officers are Dr. Robert S. Jason, chief pathologist at Freedmen's and Howard, secretary, and Dr. J. Richard Laurey, chief chest surgeon at Freedmen's, treasurer. Contributions will be received at the foundation's offices at 520 W st. nw.

World Loan Fund Urged to Assist Backward Areas

By the United Press

The Public Affairs Institute proposed yesterday that a two-billion-dollar international loan fund be set up to finance self-liquidating cooperative projects in connection with President Truman's Point four program of aid to backward areas.

The plan was outlined in a pamphlet, "Helping People Help Themselves," written for the institute by Wallace J. Campbell, executive secretary of the Cooperative League of the United States of America, and Richard Y. Giles.

The authors suggested that the loan fund be administered by the United Nations, and that it be in addition to all public and private capital investment programs now being considered for Point four.

The loan fund would be used for "self liquidating projects such as electric power lines like our own REA, cooperative irrigation projects, farm machinery and equipment, rural health facilities, housing and other productive facilities," the authors said.

Developments Hint New Potato Battle

next year. The penalty will be removed of price supports from potatoes.

The law says that all price protection will be taken from potatoes next year unless they are subject to marketing quotas. Since the marketing quota law does not apply to potatoes, Congress must modify it at once. A Senate Agriculture subcommittee already is studying this problem. After it is passed, the potato growers must vote to come under its provisions. In order for them to have time for such a vote, the bill must be enacted at once.

Limit on Sales Also

A marketing quota law not only restricts the acreage that each farmer may plant, but also limits the amount of the crop he can sell.

"Marketing quotas have worked fairly well on some of the basic commodities since these commodities are storable and can be carried over each year, thus providing a buffer against shortages or surpluses in current production," Kline wrote Ellender.

"We have had no experience with marketing quotas on a crop such as potatoes where there is no carryover from year to year and where consumer supplies must come solely from current production."

Kline's proposal is:

1. Potatoes be supported at 60 percent of parity in 1951—the same as this year.

2. That marketing agreements (voluntary agreements voted by potato growers) be required as a condition for price supports, and also "as a means of encouraging effective marketing to raise commercial prices above the support level."

3. Development of programs by the Agriculture Department "for the disposal of surplus and low-grade potatoes through the marketing agreements committees," in areas where marketing agreements are in effect.

The problem, Kline said, "is to develop a program which will assure consumers an adequate supply of high-quality potatoes, provide price protection for producers on the potatoes needed to supply the market, and permit diversion of any surplus at a minimum cost."

"Where potatoes below the grade of United States No. 1 are diverted under marketing agreements," he continued, "we recommend that the support price be at the minimum necessary to bring about diversion. Support prices should reflect grade differentials."

The difference between the Kline proposal and the present program, Kline said, is that "our proposal provides for diversion of potatoes below grade of United States No. 1 through marketing agreement committees at less than the statutory minimum support price."

Shocking Sum Got by Bigots, League Says

New York, April 9 (AP).—Successful attacks on racial and religious prejudice in sports, education and other key areas of American life during 1949 were reported today by the Anti-Defamation League.

The report added, however, that the "shocking" sum of more than one million dollars was collected by "leading professional bigots" last year.

ADL, founded 37 years ago, is the educational arm of the Jewish service organization B'nai B'rith.

With few exceptions, the report said, professional sports now are free of discrimination. But of tennis, golf, yachting and other amateur sports, the report added: "Games which attract a select few are more easily burdened by snobbery of their participants."

Although most colleges maintain a discriminatory quota system to some extent, the survey said, this system is under attack by college students and some leading educators.

The report said the Ku Klux Klan in the South has split into a handful of units competing for power and has become "little more than a poor-paying racket for a gang of confidence men."

Fifty-seven anti-Semitic organizations were reported active in 1949, 24 of them in the Midwest.

Big Merchant Fleet Is Urged For Japanese

New York, April 9 (AP).—The American Council on Japan, Inc., a private organization, recommended today that restrictions on Japanese shipbuilding and shipping be omitted from the forthcoming Japanese peace treaty.

Japan must have a strong merchant fleet, the council said in a report to Secretary of State Dean Acheson, if it again is to become self-maintaining. The council recommended a fleet totaling at least four million gross tons, the same as Japan had in 1934.

Former Ambassador to Japan Joseph C. Grew is honorary chairman of the council. The report was prepared by a three-man council committee, including Admiral Thomas C. Hart, commander of the United States Asiatic Fleet when the United States entered the war; former United States Ambassador to Japan William R. Castle and Eugene H. Dooman, prewar counselor of the American Embassy at Tokyo.

Major United States shipping interests have been outspoken against allowing Japan to rebuild her merchant fleet.

'Hooey,' Says Ross of Binaggio Bid Report

Key West, Fla., April 9 (AP).—Presidential Secretary Charles G. Ross described as a "lot of hooey" today a report that Charles Binaggio tried strenuously in the last weeks of his life to make political peace with President Truman.

The St. Louis Star-Times said in a copyrighted story yesterday that the slain Kansas City political leader strove desperately but unsuccessfully, to reach an accord with Mr. Truman. As his peace emissary to Key West, the newspaper said it had learned, Binaggio chose United States Marshal Fred A. Canfil of Kansas City.

Ross, terming the story "not true," said Canfil had not been in touch with the President since the latter left Washington last March 12.

The Star-Times article said the purpose of Binaggio's purported peace offer was to remove friction between the rival Democratic organizations headed by Binaggio and James Pendergast. President Truman is a member of the Jackson Democratic Club, the political faction headed by Pendergast.

Floral Pieces Pour In For Binaggio Funeral

Kansas City, Mo., April 9 (U.P.).—Huge banks of floral tributes were massed today around the copper caskets of Charles Binaggio and Charles Gargotta, gangland assassination victims, on the eve of their funeral.

Separate services will be held Monday morning.

Peter B. Lapetina, funeral director, said that he already had more than 150 sprays for the Binaggio rites and more were pouring in. Sprays were from Chicago, New York, Washington, San Francisco, Jefferson City, St. Louis and local friends.

Among the long list of honorary pallbearers for Binaggio were a number of State and county office holders and his associates in the North End power triumvirate which controlled 30,000 votes for four years but couldn't buy favor either at the White House or from the gubernatorial mansion in Jefferson City.

U. S. Plane Missing on Hop To Copenhagen

Weisbaden, Germany, April 9 (AP).—United States Air Force headquarters announced today a United States Navy patrol plane with a crew of 10 vanished yesterday on a training flight from Wiesbaden to Copenhagen.

The plan, a PB-4-Y, took off shortly before noon yesterday and was to have returned here early last night. It was officially declared missing at midnight, when its fuel supply would have been exhausted if it had been continuously in the air.

The last known message from the aircraft was received at Bremerhaven as it was crossing the German border on its flight northward, the announcement said. It gave no hint of trouble.

A widespread aerial search began early today from an advance operation base set up at Copenhagen airport.

Demaret Wins Masters Title as Ferrier Collapses

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

AUGUSTA, GA., APRIL 9.—A spirit of harmony now prevails in the pro golf business, if you want to believe the statement issued last night by the PGA after a meeting with the dissident pros. If you don't want to believe it, well, there are plenty of grounds.

All the pros ever wanted was more money from their tournaments—a kickback on their $10 entrance fees, the radio and television revenue to be put into the prize money pot, and a bigger voice in where and how they should play, for how much and when.

POVICH

They were bludgeoned into peace terms with the PGA, such as they are. As I hear it, one of the big golf equipment manufacturers, in fact the biggest, was scared stiff at the prospect of souring the great body of PGA membership, the home club pros, against the tournament-playing stars. The result, of course, would have been a drop in the sales of the equipment to which they lend their names.

So this No. 1 manufacturer issued an ultimatum to the playing pros—stay within the PGA structure, or get off our payrolls, we can't afford to lose too many friends in the pro shops. Thus peace came to the PGA.

AS ONE manufacturers' representative phrases it, "We can't afford to brush off the little guys, the fellows who teach and run the shops at the clubs and sell our clubs and balls and bags. They're proud of their own PGA membership. If they get to thinking the playing pros want too much power and are out to run the PGA, they have their own recourse—they won't sell our stuff."

The manufacturers, he said, have a proper esteem for the home club pros who don't bother with the tournament circuit. "They have more influence with the club members than the Sneads, the Hogans, the Nelsons and the Demarets. The member buys the kind of clubs and balls the home pro recommends. We want to keep on friendly terms with him. We had to tell the big-shot pros to stop yapping at the PGA."

Joe Novak and Horton Smith, the top PGA officials, did relent to the extent of permitting the pros to place five of heir own tournament-playing members on a temporary tournament committee and thus give them a face-saving device to further the harmony window-dressing. But the pros got none of their objectives, none of the say-so they wanted about how the money should be split.

THE PGA STATEMENT bore down hard on the harmony theme, and glossed over the PGA action of last week when Tournament Manager George Schneiter, a $21,000-year-employe, was summarily fired for leading the revolt of the playing pros.

Questioned about Schneiter by Charles Bartlett, president of the golf writers, PGA President Joe Novak said simply, "no further action is being taken with regard to Schneiter." All of which meant that Schneiter stays fired, and the pros were taking no steps to save the job of the man who had stuck his neck out on their behalf.

Purely and simply, the playing pros dumped Schneiter, after encouraging him to make the demands that led to his discharge from his well-paying job. His was the only head that rolled, but the heads of the tournament pros should be hanging somewhat after sacrificing him to the ire of both the PGA and the manufacturers.

SECRETARY HORTON SMITH, of the PGA, who has come a long way since his caddying days at Joplin, Mo., and now talks like a parliamentarian, says Schneiter "gave the pros poor leadership, and carelessly exposed them to what has happened."

The tournament pros, Smith says, actually attempted under Schneiter's leadership to form a PGPA—Professional Golf Players Association. "They wanted to be the tail that wagged the dog," says Smith, "to govern the PGA tournaments without being subject to PGA regulations. They wanted to stay within the PGA, get the benefits of PGA prestige, but not subscribe to it."

Schneiter's discharge, the nonsalaried Smith declared, was inevitable.

"Here was one of our employes, handsomely paid at $21,000 a year, wanting to defy PGA authority while he was on our payroll. What would you do?"

Luke Has Shoulder Separation

Cleveland Wallops Giants, 12-6; Easter Hurt, May Miss Opener

Oklahoma City, Okla., April 9 (AP).—Luke Easter, the Cleveland Indians' hard hitting rookie outfielder, was injured today as the Tribesmen came through with 19 hits to defeat the New York Giants, 12-6.

Easter, who has nailed down an outfield berth with the club, suffered a slight shoulder separation in the third inning when hit by Centerfielder Bob Kennedy's knee. The two fielders were after a long fly when Easter dived for th ball and the collision occurred.

Trainer Wally Bock of the Indians said Easter would be out for the duration of the exhibition season and might not be ready for the club's opening game of the season on April 18.

Yankees Hit Five Homers

Memphis, Tenn., April 9 (AP).—Refusing to become overawed by five New York Yankee homers, the Memphis Chicks battled the world champions right down to the ninth inning today before losing 9-8, before a crowd of 16,138.

With the score tied and Joe Collins on third, the result of a single, a stolen base and an error, Billy Johnson punked a single to left in the ninth off lefthander Leonardo Goicoechea to drive home the winning run in the ninth.

Joe DiMaggio, playing his first game since the Yanks left St. Petersburg, Fla., exploded one of the Bombers' homers. Tommy Henrich, playing only three innings, hit two circuit blows while Gene Woodling and Hank Bauer accounted for the others.

Nats Explode 16 Hits, Sock A's, 17-5

Griffs Clip Wyse for 6 Runs in 1st

Special To Post

Orlando, Fla., April 9.—The Nats wrapped up their spring training campaign today with their biggest offensive explosion of the year, a 16-hit barrage that buried the Philadelphia Athletics under a 17-5 score.

It might have been worse but for a mutual agreement to call the game at the end of eight innings to allow both teams to catch a train.

For Bucky Harris' crew it was merely a carry-over from yesterday's fiasco. But today's stickwork was old-fashioned socking that wreathed Harris' face in smiles. Ten of the 16 hits were for extra bases, eight of them doubles, one triple and a climaxing three-run homer by Clyde Vollmer in the eighth. Irv Noren, Eddie Yost and Sam Dente collected two doubles each.

A six-run assault helped along considerably by Mr. Connie Mack's $100,000 investment at third base, Bob Dillinger, started the clambake and spelled curtains for Hank Wyse, the transplanted National Leaguer, who was an 18-game winner in the Texas League last year.

Wyse lasted one inning. Then came Bob Hooper, a 19-game victor at Buffalo whose rating took just as severe a tumble, and Carl Scheib. All were hit hard.

Steve Nagy made his second start of the spring for the Nats and stuck around for six innings, looking great in the tight spots. The A's, after a first-inning run, finally got to him for four runs on four hits and a costly bobble by Sam Dente in the sixth.

With the offense the Nats had today, most any pitcher would have looked good. Mickey Harris came in for the final two frames and hurled hitless ball, facing seven batters.

Nagy Triples

A hit batsman, Gil Coan, two bases on balls, a wild pitch, three errors by Dillinger plus Noren's first double and a mighty triple by Nagy gave the Nats their six runs in the opening frame. That finished Wyse and Dillinger for the day.

Yost's double and Kozar's single got another run off Hooper in the second and Nagy tallied in the third on Ed Stewart's single.

Doubles by Yost, Mickey Grasso and Dente coupled with Coan's walk produced three runs in the fourth. Scheib got the Nats out in order in the fifth—the only time that happened all day—but doubles from Kozar and Dente mixed with Coan's single accounted for two runs off the righthander in the sixth.

In the eighth, Dente singled for his third straight hit. Noren hit a long double to the centerfield fence and Stewart singled Dente home. Then came Vollmer's smash, his only hit of the day incidentally, and that did it.

Today's win gave the Nats a record of seven wins against nine losses against major league competition this spring and a 4-2 mark against minor league opposition.

The Athletics trounced the Nats twice in succession at the outset of their training grind.

Demaret Doffs Green Coat To Don Prize—Green Coat

Augusta, Ga., April 9 (AP). — Masters winner Jimmy Demaret, far and away the most colorfully dressed golfer since the days of Scottish kilts and tam o'shanters, got something he didn't need—a bright green coat.

It's dapper Jimmy's third solid green coat—each a signifier of a Masters' tournament title.

Jimmy had to remove another green coat when Bobby Jones, president of the Augusta National Club, presented the champion with his new jacket.

Demaret's garb was near solid green on this sunny Easter Sunday. He wore chartreuse pants, a green and white knitted golf shirt, and a green checked coat.

There may have been 18,000 fans spread about the 6900 yards of the Augusta National Golf course, but you could spot Jimmy by just taking a peek.

Demaret's two earlier Masters victories were in 1947 and 1940.

Aussie Bogies 5 of Last 6 Holes as Jim Fires 69-283

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Augusta National Country Club, Ga., April 9.—Jimmy Demaret, the golfing dude from Ojai, Calif., threw a three-under-par 69 at tournament leader Jim Ferrier today and beat him out of the Masters' championship.

Ferrier, the leader through the first three rounds, buckled badly on today's final nine, bogeying five of the last six holes and tossed off the title with a ghastly incoming 41 under pressure of Demaret's earlier finish.

The fancily-dressed Demaret, the ensemble kid in pea-green slacks, lemon-green sweater, aqua-green suede shoes topped by green cap, had a fancy game to match his attire and become the first golfer in history to win the Masters three times.

Snead Third With 287

Jubilant at his victory, and accepting from Bobby Jones the trophy he had also won in 1940 and 1947, Showman Demaret broke into song at the ceremonies, and in his rich baritone delivered "How Lucky You Are."

His luck consisted only of Ferrier's blow-up on the final nine, which landed the Australian-born pro from San Francisco two strokes to the rear of Demaret's subpar 283 for the 72 holes.

Moving up to take third-place money, but in a futile bid for Demaret's $2000 check was Slamming Sammy Snead who clicked off a final-round 72 for a 287 total.

Ben Hogan, starting the day only four strokes off Ferrier's pace, removed himself as a title threat with an outgoing 38, and finished with a 76, to tie Byron Nelson for fourth at 288. Nelson soared to a 2-over par 74.

Ferrier's fortunes sagged suddenly after his brilliant outgoing nine of 34, which at that point gave him a five-stroke bulge on Demaret, who started today's play four strokes back and dropped another shot to Ferrier on the first nine.

Ferrier Sees That 69

With Demaret's 69 already posted as Ferrier turned for home, the Australian emigre started messing it up for himself on the thirteenth when he hooked his drive into a ditch and had to take a penalty stroke that led to a bogey six.

"Tht was my only real bad shot of the day," declared Ferrier at the finish. "I was hitting everything else well, but my approaches wound up in bad spots, and I wasn't getting down in two from the edges of too many greens."

The extent of Ferrier's collapse was seen in his card which showed him bogeying five of the last six holes, yet moving to the sixteenth tee he still had three pars in to beat Demaret's 283 total.

He failed to par the three-shot sixteenth, went one over again on the seventeenth by failing to get down in two from the edge of the green, and came up to the eighteenth needing a birdie three to win.

Ferrier was in position to go for his birdie on the home hole with a tremendous drive that left him with a 7-iron shot to the green, but

Barney Goes To School to Learn Pitching

Atlanta, Ga., April 9 (AP).—Rex Barney, the Brooklyn Dodger's fireball pitcher, who has been promising greatness and never making it, is going back to school, according to an announcement today by Branch Rickey, president of the Brooklyn club.

Barney was removed from the "B" squad, managed by Coach Clyde Sukeforth and sent back to the Vero Beach training camp, where he will be tutored both by Rickey and George Sisler.

"He will learn to pitch all over again," said Rickey. "He has been what you might call consistently wild—that is, always wild to the same spots. We'll keep him at Vero Beach through April and if he finally learns to pitch it will be worth it if he has to remain there until next October."

Demaret Wins Masters as Ferrier Folds his approach was 30 feet past the pin on the tricky final carpet.

Studying the shot that could tie the match for him, with most of the gallery of 18,000 seeking vantage points, Ferrier putted a bit boldly and missed the cup five feet to the left and beyond.

With nothing more to lose, and second place already clinched, he even 3-putted the eighteenth. A sorry finish for the man who had been the master putter of the Masters.

Hogan, the man who was favored in the betting to emerge the winner over Ferrier, who had four of the game's big names—Demaret, Snead, Hogan and Nelson—yapping at his heels when the final round opened, wouldn't blame his physical condition for his failure.

"I felt pretty good," said Hogan, who missed the tournament a year ago because it was then doubtful he would even survive an automobile accident. "I was hitting the ball well, but I wasn't thinking good golf," he added.

Demaret, a gaudy sight as he stepped to the first tee in his clothes-horse get up, was assuming that he would have to shoot at least a 67 today to figure in even a tie that would necessitate a play-off. He visualized at least a 71 for the steady-going Ferrier, who had turned in rounds of 70-67-73. He wasn't bargaining on Ferrier's 75 today.

To get his outgoing 35, Demaret saved himself a bogey on the fourth hole by exploding out of a trap within one putt of the hole, and on the ninth he clipped a stroke off par by planting a seven-iron virtually against the cup. It hit the hole and twirled an inch away.

He was scrambling for his par on the tenth hole and got it with a 15-foot putt, and on the par-five thirteenth which he had previously eagled twice in succession, he got a birdie. After a tremendous drive, Demaret was home with a three-iron and went down in two putts.

On the par 5 fifteenth, Demaret picked up another birdie with the same technique, a massive drive, a 3-iron, and 2 putts.

Now aware that he was solidly in contention if Ferrier had a bad round, Demaret bore down magnificently on the par 3 sixteenth, despite a tee-shot that didn't hit the green.

From inches off, he whipped out his putter and sank a 33-footer for a smart deuce. He finished with a pair of regulation 4s, and on the eighteenth he got down an 8-foot putt that was the shot that eventually put the pressure on Ferrier.

Sam Jethroe Also Homers In 15-12 Win

Roanoke, Va., April 9 (AP).—Tommy Holmes, the forgotten man of the Braves who drove in the only run in Boston's 1-0 victory over Bob Feller in the 1948 World Series, reminded the club he's still in contention for a job today.

Tommy belted a grand slam pinch home run to pilot the Boston National Leaguers to a daffy 15-12 decision over the Cincinnati Reds, the fourth successive Tribal victory over the Rhinelanders in their northbound exhibition tour.

Switch-hitting Negro Sam Jethroe had begun Boston's eighth turn at bat with a homer. The Tribe tallied six times in that session

Truman's 'Fielders' Don't Last

Quattrocchi to Seek Ring Title as Graduate

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

IF MICHIGAN STATE had conferred with George Washington U. before attempting to hire a coach from Missouri, the Spartans wouldn't be in the somewhat embarrassing pickle they are today . . . Two years ago GW Sports Boss Max Farrington gleefully announced the Colonials had engaged Chauncey Simpson, of Missouri, to replace Skip Stahley as head football coach, only to have Simpson phone him 24 hours later to say he had changed his mind and would stay at Missouri . . . Last week Michigan State announced it had hired Sparky Stalcup, of Missouri, as head basketball coach, but 24 hours later Stalcup pulled a Simpson and informed the Spartans he, too, had changed his mind and had decided to remain at Ole Mizzou . . . Take a good look at the Nat assigned to sit in front of President Truman's box on opening day to protect him against foul balls because the player is not likely to be at Griffith Stadium long . . . In the past few years, Milo Candini, Junior Wooten, Chick Pieretti and Mickey Haefner have had the distinction, but none finished the season with the Nats . . . The Takoma Park Girls softball team has added a new twist to its pregame exhibition—they use three balls simultaneously during infield practice.

QUATTROCCHI

NAGY

ANDY QUATTROCCHI is so determined to win a boxing championship before his eligibility expires he's decided to return to Maryland next season and box as a graduate student . . . Although he won 23 of his 28 fights, 16 by knockouts, the flashy Terrapin knockout specialist has never won a championship . . . Closest he came was two weeks ago in the finals of the NCAA when his title bout with LSU's Tad Thrash, the defending champ, was halted in the first round when Thrash was cut. Since a decision must be rendered in college fights, the judges and referee were polled and this was the result: One judge voted 10-9, Thrash; a second had it 10-9, Quattrocchi. The referee scored it 10 points for each, but put a plus sign by Thrash's score and a minus sign by Quattrocchi's, signifying Thrash was the winner . . . "It's probably the first time in the history of boxing that an arbitrary symbol of elementary math ever decided a fight," commented Col. Heinie Miller, Maryland boxing coach . . . Lou Wolfson, head of the syndicate which purchased Capital Transit Co., is moving his home from Jacksonville, Fla., to Washington soon, which means that local college coaches had better keep a sharp eye on District football players or they'll probably wind up at the University of Georgia . . . Wolfson is a former Georgia end and is almost as interested in steering football players to his alma mater as he is in his financial holdings.

JOE TUCKER, Maryland University quarterback for the past three years, has been named assistant graduate manager of athletics at his alma mater . . . Mike Sklar, the worst golfer among the town's sport goods salesmen, estimates it costs $200 to equip today's football player in top flight fashion . . . Not only doesn't Georgetown have a boat for its sailing team, but the Hoyas don't even have a horse for their polo team . . . If Bucky Harris sticks to his plans to pitch Steve Nagy by day and Dick Weik by night they should be the two busiest players in the history of baseball what with the Nats playing 68 night games and 86 day games . . . Promoter Fred Kirsch, who has abandoned Washington for his native Berlin as a base of operations, has signed Ken Stribling and Gene Jones, Camden, N. J. heavyweight, for a series of bouts in Germany in the next two months

Dancosse, Gene Smith Box Tonight

Two seven-round fights, with Gene Smith meeting Danny Dancosse in one and Pat Thomas returning against Little Dynamite in the other, head a six-event boxing show at Turner's Arena tonight.

Smith, who has scored six knockouts in winning eight professional fights, faces a big test against Dancosse, a clever Italian boxer from Manchester, Conn.,

Of his 30 fights, Dancosse has chalked up 24 victories, including decisions over Max Osario and Johnny Lemons. Smith also has licked Lemons, but it was by only the closest of margins.

The Thomas-Dynamite seven-round semifinal is a return appearance of their show-stealing scrap here several months ago when Dynamite took a close eight-round decision but was extended to the limit by Thomas, a former amateur champion.

Eddie Gilchrist, another popular local featherweight who scored an impressive victory over Lou Yonkers in his pro debut several weeks ago, also is listed on tonight's card in a special five rounder with Little Lee Murray, of Baltimore.

Three four-rounders list Kenny Leach, Baltimore lightweight vs. Frank Ball; Charlie Bennett vs. Chink Williams and Jimmy Sewell vs. Joe Davis, all lightweights.

Hughes to Coach

Portsmouth, Va., April 9 (AP).—George Hughes, grid star at William and Mary, has been named assistant football coach, track mentor and a teacher at Woodrow Wilson High School here.

Fred Hughes, jr.'s Black Caddy annexed the jumper title with three straight victories at the North End horse show yesterday at Ray's Meadow, Chevy Chase, Md.

Laura Lee Shreves' Chico took the junior championship followed by Toni Brewer's Sable, who earned the reserve award.

C. N. France, a newcomer to the show ring, saw his Timbrooke end in a tie with Mrs. Ray Norton, jr.'s Harkaway in the hunter division. Timbrooke was awarded the championship by the two judges, Robert C. Lee and Col. Barrington Wilson.

What's all the fuss about? The way to judge a beer is to taste it. And one sip of NATIONAL BOHEMIAN Beer is worth ten thousand of anybody's words!
That's the way most people in Washington seem to feel. And that seems to be why more and more Washingtonians have discovered that National Bohemian Beer seems to be their favorite.
They like its dryness. They like its paleness. They like its exceptionally satisfying full body, yet it costs no more than the average popular-priced beer.
It's only natural that one of the world's great beers should be so popular in Washington. For Washington is truly a cosmopolitan city—with the good taste that knows no boundaries.
Have you had your first sip of National Bohemian Beer? It's waiting for you. Try it, and we think you, too, will join the Washington throngs in saying—

$20,000 Chesapeake Stakes Tops Week's Racing at Havre de Grace

Harford 'Cap Listed for Wednesday

Havre de Grace, Md., April 9.—Although the Havre de Grace meeting got under way only yesterday, this week is the big one for this course on the banks of the Susquehanna River. For it will bring the twenty-ninth running of the Chesapeake Stakes, one of the East's outstanding features for 3-year-olds and often a real barometer on the hopes of Kentucky Derby candidates.

The Chesapeake, worth $20,000 added and run at a mile and a sixteenth, is set for decision Saturday and will be the second of two stakes during the next six days of action here. The first will be the renewal of the six-furlong Harford Handicap, worth $7,500 added. It is scheduled for Wednesday.

Nine Eligible From Trial

Nine of the eleven 3-year-olds who were entered in yesterday's Chesapeake trial also are eligible for the longer Chesapeake and it is safe to venture the guess that half of them will be back to fulfill their engagements. And there will be others who passed up the Trial to await the Chespeake itself.

Dion Kerr's Fleet Argo, Janet Kelly's Gigolo, Mrs. Walter M. Jefford's Suleiman, Palatine Stable's Quiz Show, Harry B. Cohen's Jess Linthicum, Greentree Stable's Androcles, Bobanet Stable's Mystagogue, W. Taylor Leatherbury's Eastern Flyway and Robert M. Wood's High Frequency are the horses from the Trial who also are named for the Chesapeake.

Sizeable Field for Harford

For the Hartford, a sizable field seems in prospect. Among the nominees are such smart sprinters as Henry Hecht's The Pincher, winner of last season's Chesapeake trial. Other prominent performers likely to be in the line-up include Brookfield Farm's Istan, Richard E. Carter's Oriole, Alan T. Clark's Fritz Maisel, Greentree Stable's Winelist, William Helis' Mr. Ace (who won the race last season), Walter M. Jeffords' Loyal Legion, Dion Kerr's Flying Weather, Mrs. Jimmy McGee's Little Harp, E. A. Stone's Rare Mineral and W. P. Taylor's Magnet, victor in Laurel's Capital Handicap.

HAIGHT.

John Chester Wins Motorcycle Trophy

With two first places and one second, John Chester took the Piney Grove Speedway Stunt Motorcycle Races trophy yesterday at Piney Grove, Md.

Chester, eight points topped Bob Rudis four. Regular races begin at the speedway May 7.

At Havre de Grace.

Dear Folks:

Although the appearance of Hill Prince here would draw an army of Virginia fans, this track is happy that he will stay in New York next Saturday for the Experimental No. 2. The Chenery colt is going to scare several crack 3-year-olds into coming to Maryland for the Chesapeake Stakes to dodge him, thus making for a better race. Guy Bedwell, veteran of the racing wars, has won the Harford Handicap, Wednesday's feature, six times—Billy Kelly in 1919, 1920 and 1921; Sun Egret in 1939 and 1940 and Sollure in 1944. One of the most exacting jobs around a track is that of identifying horses in the paddock. Former Jockey George Rose has the assignment at Charles Town.—BILL.

Laurel, Md., April 9 (AP).—Willie Doyle, who rode to fame aboard a longshot Preakness winner in 1909 then settled into the quiet career of a racing official, has heard his last call to the post.

The 72-year-old patrol judge died in a sanitorium here last night after suffering a stroke several weeks ago.

His most notable victory was his handling of Effendi, a 40-1 shot, when the Preakness was revived at Pimlico in 1909 after a 19-year absence.

Little Willie, carrying 11 pounds of lead to make up the 116-pounds assnigned to Effendi, piloted the 3-year-old home ahead of nine others, including the even-money favorite, Fashion Plate.

"NO CAVITIES AT LAST CHECK"

Mrs. Rose Kovel, 8310-12 35th Avenue, Jackson Heights, N. Y., who has three children says, "My whole family has been using Amm-i-dent regularly with wonderful results. Our rates of new cavity formation have steadily decreased, until at our last check-up, none of us had a single new cavity! You can't do better than that!"

Mr. Benjamin Lucatorto, 1423 Fteley Avenue, Bronx, N. Y., says, "My son and I have been watching the results of our faithful use of Amm-i-dent. At every six months' check we found we had fewer cavities, but last time we were delighted to hear our dentist report, 'No new cavities for either of you!' I call that real results."

These people used Amm-i-dent during clinical research.

Strollers, Autos Jam Connecticut Ave.; Guess Who Wins Hat Prize? A Man!

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

In crisp, cool weather, a vast multitude poured onto Connecticut ave. yesterday to give Washington its biggest and happiest Easter Parade in memory.

The "biggest" was applied by the Police Department, which estimated the crowd at between 60,000 and 70,000. Last year it was only 30,000.

The "happiest" was applied by almost everyone there. A block took a good ten minutes to walk and not a shove was reported, not one Easter hat ruffled.

All afternoon Connecticut and Constitution aves. were choked solid with cars.

Aside from the truly amazing size of the crowd, it was the feeling of goodness and gladness that filled the air in the Connecticut ave. parade that was the story of the day.

It was as if for this one day—and what better day than Easter for it—the people gave themselves a momentary respite from all the hard and nervous cares of this Hydrogen Age.

Even a policeman, caught up in a hopeless traffic jam, suddenly burst into laughter where he stood in an intersection, threw up his hands.

"Nobody cares! Nobody's in a hurry—it's Easter!"

And the crowd laughed with him.

And the hats. Oh, the hats!

They were completely anarchistic.

No one could challenge for top honors in the wild-and-fancy-free category that blithe woman who wore in her hair a parrot chained to a leash.

But even in the nonanimal competition, too, the chapeaux were a sight to behold.

But it remained for a man, of all creatures, to show the women a thing or two by walking off with the "most unique hat" crown awarded in the Connecticut Avenue Association contest.

He was Noel E. Reynolds, 61, superintendent of the Greyhound Bus Station, who wore above his striped trousers and cutaway coat this dazzling creation:

A white-pine board base 13½ by 14½ inches surmounted by nine of those tinkling toy springs that crawl, self-propelled, downstairs.

"It's a spring hat!" gleefully shouted Reynolds to all questioners.

Some of the wildest creations were worn by dogs. At times it was difficult to know if this was a fashion day for dogs or human beings.

From little dachshunds whose bellies scraped the walks of Connecticut ave. to lean wolfhounds towering almost as high as their masters, the canine world was out in the full force of Easter finery.

Prize in the four-legged class went to a two-year-old cocker named Winkie, owned by 20-year-old Marjorie Taylor of 7505 Bybrook la., Chevy Chase.

Black Winkie wore an underskirt of green metallic satin with an overskirt of black net spangled with riotous French flowers. Plus black jet lacey stuff grilled with American Beauty roses and a flowered French chapeau with purple bow under the chin.

More than one eyebrow was raised when "Gaby," a one-year-old French poodle, swing-hipped by with her nose elevated six inches and on her curly head a frilly white hat with white eyelet ruffles.

Gaby let out not even a bark, but her owners, Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Andrew McCrone, of 5950 10th rd., Arlington, had an explanation:

"After all, she's a woman!"

But Easter belongs to women, whose day it was everywhere, but nowhere more so than in Washington. For Washington is a "woman's town" every day.

And, ah! the women of Washington were never lovelier than yesterday, at mid-century Easter. And the men loved it!

Inspection line No. 1 was the block of the Mayflower Hotel between K and De Sales sts.

Those who came to see stood in double lines on each side of the walk, and those who came to be seen marched down the wide row between to be scanned by the critical eye.

Judges in the Connecticut Avenue Association contest were the big socialite names of Washington, who roamed the avenue in fancy sport cars tapping their winners, and it was fitting that the biggest socialite name of them all brought in the first winner.

She was Mrs. Delbert Zahn, wife of a St. Elizabeths Hospital attendant, who was walking pretty as you please down the avenue when Mrs. Morris Cafritz descended on her to give Mrs. Zahn, as she herself said, the thrill of her lifetime.

Mrs. Zahn was dubbed "best-dressed matron" in her wood violet suit, orchid hat with purple cabbage roses, and hat, shoes and bag of various matching purple shades.

She got a prize from the Association but her biggest prize was in meeting Mrs. Cafritz.

"I'm so thrilled!" she bubbled. "I think Mrs. Cafritz is the most beautiful woman in the world!"

A special, unscheduled prize got worked into the program when Shirley Talbott, of 115 Rittenhouse st. nw., was labeled "most exciting-looking girl."

Shirley's beauty was matched, or almost so, by her fashion, and she was a pretty thing indeed in grey: Grey gabardine suit, and a hat of pearl grey nylon with net and with pink and grey roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph L. Peck of 1701 Massachusetts ave. nw. were winners in the "Husband and Wife Over 60" class. Mr. Peck, who is an Interior Department consultant, is "just turning 70" and Mrs. Peck is "just a little wee bit younger."

"We have a bushel of grandsons—four pecks," quipped Mr. Peck.

At times during the afternoon traffic on Connecticut Avenue was backed up clear to the Shoreham Hotel.

The new Dupont Circle construction was given a temporary, one-day opening so that for the first time you could drive your car clear around the circle. Thousands did.

It was a great day for the children, too.

Lorraine Byler, 26 months old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loran Byler of 4915 42d st. nw., attracted hundreds of admirers and scores of cameramen.

Little Lorraine was like a wonderful doll in her organdy hoop-skirt embroidered with pink-and-white flowers and her Cinderella half-bonnet and Cinderella pocketbook.

A prize most characteristic of Easter—"most exciting bonnet"—went to Mrs. Muriel Manch, age 22, of 2480 16th st. nw. The bonnet:

Iris blue, velvet-covered with gray feathers all around the brim, a very huge bonnet.

And, oh, yes, the men.

A tattersall vest here and there, no one in striped pants and frocked coat visible except Mr. Reynolds of the "spring hat." . . .

All in all the men appeared willing to leave the fashion to the women, content to look.

And there was another probable reason:

After buying those clothes worn yesterday by the women of Washington at mid-century Easter, the men probably didn't have anything left to spend on themselves.

Sergeant's Family Wins Top Award in Parade

A United States Air Force sergeant, his Australian wife and their two daughters walked away yesterday with the Connecticut ave. Easter Parade Award for the best dressed family.

Master Sergt. Harold Stiles, 28, 14 Galveston pl. sw., wore a light brown palm beach suit. His wife was dressed in a spring suit of the same color. Their little girls, Shelley, 13 months, and Cassandra, 2 years 3 months, wore identical white frocks embroidered with Easter rabbits.

The sergeant, who came to Washington only three weeks ago with his family, sported a dark brown homberg hat and Mrs. Stiles carried a dark brown alligator pocketbook. She wore a flowered white hat.

Sergeant Stiles, a veteran of 44 combat missions in the South Pacific, met Mrs. Stiles in Australia during World War II.

Judges picked the Stiles family and 48 other winners while cruising in official cars up and down Connecticut ave. between Lafayette Park and Florida ave.

1075 OHE Workers Being Dismissed

Another Sizable Reduction in Staff Planned About May 1, Officials Say

The Office of the Housing Expediter is giving layoff notices to 1075 of its employes, or about 25 percent of its entire staff.

And that deep cut won't end the personnel cutback. Officials say another sizable reduction is in the cards for around May 1 which will wipe out the jobs of several hundred employes at headquarters here and in OHE field offices.

Employes to be fired are being given only 15 days active duty notice. They will be placed on annual leave for another 15 days to conform with the 30-day notice period recommended by Civil Service.

Money troubles are forcing the layoffs. OHE doesn't have enough money to continue its present operations for the remainder of this fiscal year. The rent control agency will go out of existence on June 30 unless Congress gives it a new lease on life as urged by the President. Congressional foes of rent control are confident they have the votes to kill any proposed extension.

Layoff notices either have been or will be given these employes: 734 in New York State as that State will take over rent control on May 1; 50 in Virginia as rent control will end soon in that State; 43 in Alabama where rent control will expire on May 25; 207 in the agency's various regional offices; and 41 in the litigation and enforcement offices.

Only a handful of employes here have been given notices. The ax will be swung here in a week or so, however.

TAX CREDIT: The Internal Revenue Bureau will ignore the Federal court decision that could have cost tens of thousands of Government people millions of dollars in back income taxes.

A bureau spokesman revealed that its tax collectors will be instructed in the next day or so to forget about the decision. In addition, he said, back tax assessments that have been sent to Federal people on the basis of the decision will be recalled and canceled. The local Revenue office here is one of those that sent out some assessments.

Furthermore, it appears unlikely that the case will be appealed to the Supreme Court, or that the court will hear it if it is. The Bureau won't appeal. The Supreme Court doesn't hear tax cases, a revenue official pointed out, unless a constitutional question is involved, and no such question was raised in the case.

As revealed here Saturday, the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati ruled that Government people, civilian or military, are not allowed to make business expense deductions from their income taxes. The opinion, written by Justice John D. Martin, sr., said a person "must be engaged in private enterprise" to be eligible for these deductions.

Revenue officials explained that a provision in the Internal Revenue Code specifically states that trade or business expense "is applicable to persons holding public office." As a matter of principle, it has been Revenue's policy for years to approve job-connected expenses for the Government's military and civilian personnel. To do otherwise would be rank discrimination against Federal people.

The thousands of Government people who must traval on official business are allowed to deduct expenses over and above what Uncle Sam allows them. Membership in professional groups and employe organizations also are deductible.

The Federal court decision was handed down in the case of Edwin R. Motch, jr., who served here during the war in the Army-Navy Munitions Board as both a civilian and an Army officer. The bureau disallowed some of the deductions for entertainment and similar spending which Motch sought to take from his income taxes and the former official took his case to court.

NOTES: Philip C. Brooks has been appointed chief archivist of the war records branch of the General Services Administration. He has been records officer of the National Security Resources Board . . . Federal workers who can be spared will be excused from 3 to 4 p. m. Wednesday to greet the President of Chile . . . Five employes in Commerce's Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce have been given awards for economy suggestions. They are John Mann, Russell Whyte, Sara Goldman, Sterling March and George Whythe.

First Lady in Easter Hat Attends Reception for U. S. Ambassador's Wife

By Marie McNair

EVERY—well, almost every—Easter hat on parade yesterday was laden with flowers.

Appearing first at noon at Mr. and Mrs. Corneal J. Mack's annual Easter breakfast at the Mayflower, many of the hats went straight on to the two big parties of the afternoon.

Mrs. Truman at Mr. and Mrs. Justin Miller's tea in honor of Mrs. Henry F. Grady, wife of our Ambassador to Greece, wore a brace of white orchids on her shoulder and two red roses on her hat. The orchids, she told Mrs. Walter Wyatt, were NOT sent by the President.

Taking yesterday's events clockwise, Mr. and Mrs. Mack's party started off the day.

Guests made their way through the crowded Mayflower lobby which looked like a Charleston garden with tubs of white azaleas, mounds of flame pink ones touched with synthetic sunlight.

In the Chinese room Mr. and Mrs. Mack had their daughter, Marilyn, home from school for the holidays, and their young son, Corneal, jr. receiving with them. Mrs. Mack's gown of orchid silk had a cluster of violets tucked in at the belt, and Miss Mack wore honey colored nylon net, with green orchids pinned to the decolletage.

Easter lilies, and azaleas and blossoming cherry sprays were massed in the sunken garden centering the long buffet table.

Lilacs Are Popular

JUSTICE STANLEY REED, and Mrs. Reed with two pompons fore and aft on her black sailor, were among the several hundred guests. Senator Owen Brewster, and Mrs. Brewster with white lilacs on her hat, were enjoying, fresh shad roe, hot sausage and scrambled eggs. I saw Senator George Malone and Mrs. Malone wearing a halo of white lilacs, and pretty Mrs. Ken Regan in a smart black frock and short black and white checked jacket at a table that included Wilmer Waller, and "Dutch" Bergman.

Col. and Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel Biddle and Frank Rediker shared a table, and others there were Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Francis Matthews, Representative and Mrs. Erland H. Hendrick, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Freer and their son, Barry; Mrs. John Steelman, her wide black hat trimmed with white lilacs, topping her slim black frock; and Dr. Alfred Ridings of Texas.

Mrs. Roy St. Lewis—she said Roy was in Denver—looked ever so pretty in rustling navy blue taffeta, the wide cuffed collar dripping white ball fringe, and a pearly straw hat with mauve lilacs on her fair hair.

Mrs. Grady Welcomed Back

MR. AND MRS. JUSTIN MILLER, who live now in California, still keep the same apartment at Wardman Park which they lived in when Mr. Miller was on the bench. Mrs. Grady who arrived in Washington last Thursday, shared honors yesterday with the Miller's daughter, Mrs. Jean Miller Abbott. And very much in the picture was Mrs. Abbott's small daughter Susan in a long old-fashioned dress of pale blue organdy, clutching an Easter rabbit in her small hand.

Mrs. Grady wore pale blue chiffon over deep rose taffeta, made by the famous Greek designer, Mme. Psoukli, who recently won first prize in Paris. The frock is one of several which Mrs. Grady brought with her, all fashioned of Greek silks, all Greek designed.

The hostess was in hyacinth blue chiffon with a violet corsage and her daughter wore lovely yellow crepe with a full nylon net skirt, and a cluster of white cynbidium orchids. Trays of drinks went the rounds in the drawing room; there was a bar in the small library and taking their turn at the tea table were Mrs. William O. Douglas—Justice Douglas was there, too; Mrs. Harold Burton, with a silver gray quill soaring from her tiny matching hat; Mrs. Tom Clark, Mrs. Sherman Minton, Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone and Mrs. Cordell Hull.

Assistants in Long Dresses

MRS. OSCAR CHAPMAN presided for a time at the silver service and others performing this pleasant task were Mrs. Harold Stephens, Mrs. Henry Edgerton, Mrs. Clarence Lea, Mrs. Chet Holifield, Mrs. John Phillips, Mrs. Wayne Coy and Mrs. Sam Bass Warner.

The ladies in long dresses who were assisting were Mrs. Montford Moody, Mrs. Walter Wyatt, Mrs. Tomas Cajigas, Mrs. Bernard Gallagher in sapphire blue satin; Mrs. John Davies, jr., daughter of Mrs. Grady; Mrs. Ralph Hardy, Mrs. G. Emerson Markham, Mrs. Richard P. Doherty, Mrs. Lowell Bravenstadt, Mrs. Jane High Fridley and Miss Laura Belle Wyatt.

Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. John W. Snyder, like Mrs. Truman, came early. Mrs. Frances Perkins seemed to know everybody there, and I saw the Postmaster General and Mrs. Jesse Donaldson, Senator and Mrs. Elbert Thomas, Mrs. John Steelman again, in her lilac hat, Admiral Ross McIntire talking to Edgar Morris and Mrs. Irene Caldwell, who found herself in a group that included her former husband, Louis Caldwell.

The young Thad Browns were there, and also Mrs. Ellen Woodward and Miss Minerva Bernardino, to leave last night for New York and leaving her apartment at the Dorchester to Mrs. Grady

Mrs. Emil Hurja was among those admiring the view from Wardman's top floor, where every window of the Miller apartment looks into the tree tops and beyond to the winding Potomac River.

Russian Easter Celebrated

MR. AND MRS. JOHN SHIELDS celebrated Easter Day with open house from 4 to 8, as was the custom in czarist Russia, where Mrs. Shields, the former Princess Tatiana Abkhazi, was born. There was a suckling pig on the buffet, and variety of other meats, for this was a feast day in old Russia. There was kouletch—a stovepipe loaf of rich bread topped with white icing. And everybody was exclaiming over the paska, a molded sweetened cream cheese flaked with citron, candied cherries and nuts.

Coming and going were Mrs. Robert A. Dyer and her daughter, Dorothy, in a conversation piece hat of salmon pink flowers; Mrs. Eugene Cox, Mrs. Deborah Glassford wearing a white turban draped in a black fishnet veil; Col. Lyle Brookover, Mrs. Roy St. Lewis, Mrs. J. J. Mack, who said she's sailing for four months in Europe on May 2; Mrs. Lorthrop Stoddard, who's Russian born; Mr. and Mrs. George Boncesco, Capt. Valentine Pottle, Mr. and Mrs. Edward McKinney Hunt, Mrs. McCeney Werlich, Arthur Saul, Comdr. William Hudgins, Donald Downs and Parr Johnston, who got kissed three times, according to Russian Easter tradition; the Agricultural Attache of the Spanish Embassy and Senora de Echegaray, she was born in Russia, and Baron and Baroness von Schoen.

Party for Miss Ryan

Mrs. Frank A. Allen, jr., Miss Mary D. Allen and Mrs. John H. Kauffmann will entertain this afternoon at a shower in honor of Miss Martha Ryan, whose marriage to Mrs. Allen's son, Lieut. Walter Gordon Allen, will take place Saturday.

Mrs. Allen will also entertain the wedding party at a buffet supper on Friday evening, April 14, at her apartment at the Broadmoor.

EASTER Parade of the year 2100 is previewed by four members of the Bal Boheme's giant pageant which will have 200 in its cast. Left to right Mrs. Tayloe Perry, Mrs. James M. Minifee, Miss Betty Ann Dargan and Miss Carolyn Throckmorton rehearse a sequence for the April 17 event. Guests needn't appear in futuristic costumes, but some kind of masquerade—at least a mask—is absolutely mandatory according to the Arts Club which is putting on the Bal. It's the first Bal Boheme since before the war and the Arts Club is determined to make it the most brilliant and lavish one in history. Four large ballrooms at the Statler Hotel will be combined for the dance

Jobe Says...

'Short Short' Is the Word for Spring

"Short short" is fast becoming a new cliche. First it meant a short short story; then a short short movie; and now it's a short short coat.

As the name implies, the short short is briefest of all new spring shortcoats. It comes a little below the waistline—the longest are no more than 21 inches—and always with a flare so it looks like a little cape. We often call then cape-wraps.

Because there is so little of it, the short short looks smartest in heavier fabrics—closely cropped fleeces, spring chinchillas, suede, and monotone tweeds. Colors may be what you will; white and pale pastels that double for evening wear; bright shock colors for casual; navy or beige for the Easter Parade.

'Double-Barreled' Baking Powder Makes Cook Dubious, but Anne Suggests a Careful Proportion

DEAR ANNE:
In what way does the double-acting baking powder differ from the old-fashioned kind? I have always used two teaspoonsful to an egg. Now I do not know what to do and would appreciate some information on the subject. J. L. T., Washington.

Double-acting — or sulphate-phosphate — baking powder really does go into action twice. One-fifth to one-third of its gas is released in the bread while it is still cold. The rest of its rising is done when it is heated.

Some cookbooks advise using less of the double-acting baking powder than of the single-acting kinds. It's a good idea to follow the manufacturers' suggestions, if any, on the can. However, in Belle Lowe's "Experimental Cookery" (John Wiley and Sons, Inc.), she says you're safe in following the rule of 1 teaspoon of baking powder to 1 cup of flour for all types, including the double-acting.

I've never heard the rule about 1 teaspoon to an egg, and it doesn't sound too logical to me since both are leavening agents. I believe the "1 teaspoon baking powder to 1 cup flour" rule is a more usual and trustworthy one.

DEAR ANNE:
About M. W. of Washington, who asked about the baby product combination, what happened? Did she forget bathinette in her wishful thinking?,
J. H. M., Silver Spring, Md.

Don't know, J. H. M., but it appears that dreams do come true! Readers—lots of 'em—have written in the last few days about several products along the lines described by M. W.

One combines high chair, carriage, stroller, table and chair set, bassinette, youth chair, auto seat and auto bed—all the things she listed. It comes in several parts, to be assembled in various forms. To contact the agent, call Tuckerman 3636.

Another combines high chair, youth chair, table and chair set, stroller with reclining back-rest, and car seat. Its agent can be reached by telephoning Tuckerman 4141.

Still another consists of a feeding table with chair in center which you can remove and use as car seat or swing. There's an extra chair for mother. Table can be raised or lowered, later turned into a chalk board or regular table. Besides, there's an attachment for turning it into a bassinette, and, yes, a bathinette, too! To reach the agent, call Executive 4370.

PETUNIA!

I brighten vegetable soup
With just a whisper
Of celery—freshly chopped—
To make it crisper!

Good idea, Petunia! The fresh, uncooked celery adds texture-appeal . . . tastes good, too.

Bishop-Bracken

DEAR ANNE:
How can I clean real parchment lampshades as well as the regular paper ones? Vera A., Washington.

Dough-type wallpaper cleaner is excellent for this purpose. Hold a folded towel inside the shade as you rub with the cleaner so as not to dent and wrinkle the paper or parchment.

DEAR ANNE:
I have a pretty bowl of artificial wax flowers that have gotten all dusty. Is there any way of cleaning them?
K. B. T., Leesburg.

Dip the wax flowers up and down in any good dry cleaning fluid to freshen them.

DEAR ANNE:
Here at the Naval Academy we often have cabinet pudding for dessert and the other night, the question was raised over what particular "cabinet" the pudding was named for. Being a plebe, I was naturally delegated to find out by writing to you.
Midn. A. W. P., 4/c, Annapolis Md.

About the only answer to this I've been able to dig up is that they call it "cabinet pudding" because you can clean out the kitchen cabinet when you make it. It's a good way to use up left-over cake, plain or sponge, though some recipes call for lady fingers or macaroons. Cake slices are alternated with custard dotted with such goodies as nuts, raisins, or maraschino cherries. The whole is chilled before serving with whipped cream or sauce. (Or has the Navy a different recipe?)

There's No Second Act 'Save' on Air

By Mark Barron

NEW YORK (AP).—Probably no theater group has reached such an extensive audience, or brought a greater number of distinguished plays to an American audience, than the Theater Guild on the Air.

Twenty years ago the Guild, which then produced plays only for Broadway, realized the importance of theater audiences in cities such as Kansas City, Boston and Baltimore. The Guild directors sent out a repertory company headed by Fredric March and Florence Eldridge to perform several plays which had won prizes on Broadway. The group went into the one-night stands.

In 1945 the Theater Guild, in addition to its Broadway productions, began their dramatizations of notable plays and famous stars on the air. Its dramatizations ranged from Eugene O'Neill and Noel Coward to the youngest of Broadway playwrights.

The powerhouse behind this parade of stars in a procession of great plays is Homer Fickett, a round man who reminds one of Charles Laughton and a director who needs to say only a few well-chosen words to persuade the most glamorous of Hollywood, Broadway and Piccadilly stars that they must keep their temperament under control if they are to do their performances in the short time alloted them on the air.

Fickett is a director who thinks actors are people who should be treated with understanding. But, he emphasizes, they should seldom be allowed to be their own critics.

In staging his broadcast dramatizations of the Guild shows, they always do a recording before the actual broadcast.

"I never allow performers to hear a playback of the records of broadcasts until after it has actually gone out on the air," Fickett said. "I think the worst thing in the world is for an actor to hear his own performance, to hear it both as an actor and as a critic."

The Theater Guild performances receive high ratings regularly and it isn't always the star movie names which get the highest marks.

"Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne got the highest rating of last season with their high comedy performances of 'Oh, Mistress Mine'," Fickett said. "And this disproves the theory that you have to have picture names or radio names or television names to produce a successful play on the air. Certainly, Lunt and Miss Fontanne have confined their activities almost entirely to the theater. Yet they won the top rating in 'Theater Guild on the Air' with their one performance of this comedy."

Director Fickett, however, is not one who thinks that because stars and plays are successful on the stage, they must necessarily be equal hits on air dramatizations.

"What is successful on the stage might not be successful on the radio, because the stage is two-dimensional," he said. "The appeal of radio drama is an ancient and simple one—just 'tell me a story.' Unless you win your audience in the first two or three minutes, you haven't got them. You can't do as you sometimes can in the theater: Depend upon a smash hit second act to win back an indifferent audience."

Air theater audiences have discrimination and judgment, Fickett said, and they aren't simply interested in the newest best-seller on Broadway. Helen Hayes playing "What Every Woman Knows"; Dorothy McGuire and Basil Rathbone playing "A Doll's House;" Judith Anderson and Helen Menken playing "The Old Maid," and Walter Huston and Jessie Royce Landis playing "Dodsworth" brought top response from the listening audience. And all of these were plays brought down from theater historical shelves.

"Audiences want the Guild to give them what they expect from the Guild, just as they wouldn't want Toscanini to do be-bop," Fickett said. "We could have asked Judith Anderson and Maurice Evans to do a give-away prize program. We gave them instead Miss Anderson and Mr. Evans doing 'MacBeth,' and in that production they received, I think, the jackpot."

Takoma Units Form Group For Recreation

Organization of a Recreational Council representing 14 church, civic and service groups to seek a program for the Prince Georges section of Takoma Park, Md., was announced yesterday by City Councilman Lawrence Oosterhous.

The council will serve as an advisory and liaison body to the Prince Georges County Recreation Board, which will hear its recommendations April 12. Currently, there are no recreation facilities provided by Prince Georges County in Takoma Park.

Supporting the movement is the Joint Citizens Committee of Prince Georges County, which will introduce a resolution urging the City Council's indorsement of a program, at the latter's meeting today at 8 p. m. in the Municipal Building, 8 Columbia ave.

Delegates and the groups they represent are: Larry Burd, East Takoma Citizens' Association; Mrs. Phillip Cole, Sligo Park Citizens; C. E. Werback, Spring Park Citizens; Mrs. Louis Caplan, Lincoln Valley Citizens; Andrew Seitz, Hampshire Greens Citizens; Joseph Haight, Boy Scouts; Phillip Cole, Cub Packs; the Rev. H. R. Hodgson, Grace Methodist Church; the Rev. James King, Our Lady of Sorrows Catholic Church; Al Marcus, Boys Club; Mrs. Frances Lindahl, J. Enos Ray School; Mrs. Freeman Slye, J. Enos Ray P-TA; Mrs. Frances Watts, Girl Scouts and Mrs. June Corle, Brownies.

Patuxent Dam Project Hit by Landowners

Over the disgruntled protests of owners of 97 properties bordering on the Patuxent River, the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission is trying to double the Montgomery-Prince Georges County water reserve.

For suburban Maryland residents who are annually told not to sprinkle their lawns in summer, or wash their cars, the proposed Laurel Dam is good news.

But for the property owners on the rolling hills which surround the site of the dam—who must surrender either by sale or by condemnation about 3000 acres—the dam is a threat to farmland, scenery and basic convenience.

Harry B. Shaw, chief deputy engineer of WSSC, points out that the dam is not a new proposal; it is another step in WSSC plans for adequate water facilities for the area the commission covers.

The contemplated dam, between Laurel and Mink Hollow near Ashton, will link with the existing Brighton Dam, above Mink Hollow, to feed through purification plants and pumping stations.

The dam will store 6½ billion gallons, double the amount of the Brighton Dam. It will cost $2,250,000 and will generate 1500 horsepower.

Negotiations with property owners are under way. Once WSSC has the necessary land, Shaw believes it will take from 12 to 18 months to build the dam.

Clifton C. Link of Ashton, president of the Patuxent River Property Owners' Association which is protesting the dam, said the principal objection is the amount of land WSSC wants for the reservoir. He thinks some members might drop their objections if WSSC would withdraw its taking lines to border the reservoir site.

Shaw pointed out, however, that this would defeat one of the purposes of the dam—the creation of a reservoir of pollution-free water. "We have to have enough of the surrounding territory to guard the water from pollution," he explained.

Link thinks it would be better if WSSC went to the Potomac to get its water. But WSSC officials point out that the Potomac River is not a natural watershed for the suburban Maryland area; that the howl the 97 Laurel area property owners are putting up would be nothing compared to the yowls of suburbanites if connections had to be laid through their lots.

What prices WSSC will be willing to pay for the land will vary sharply, Shaw said. Some is pasture, some is tilled, and some woodland. Market value for homesites also is a consideration in the prices WSSC will offer.

WSSC, which now serves 230,000 people in suburban Maryland, is keeping one eye on the Laurel Dam project and the other on the growing rate of expansion in the suburbs. An expanded building program for the area has been projected at least through 1952. If WSSC doesn't find more water reserves somewhere—and it has picked Laurel as the "somewhere" along the Patuxent—new suburbanites will be getting only a trickle of service from WSSC, officials said.

Radio Station KICD Destroyed by Fire

Spencer, Iowa, April 9 (AP).—Radio station KICD was destroyed here early today in a fire that razed the one-story building in less than two hours.

Ben Sanders, station owner, estimated the loss at between $60,000 and $75,000 and said, "It was a complete loss; there wasn't a stick saved."

VIEWPOINT — By Dave Gerard

"There was two of 'em! One guy over 7 feet tall carried a sub-machine gun. The other guy—about 4 feet tall—carried a shot gun!"

"I'd say they were about medium height—maybe 5 feet 6 inches. And they had pistols—great big pistols—in each hand!"

Pope Pius XII—Priest and Statesman

Crosby and Fitzgerald Film Is Pontiff's Top Favorite

By Kees Van Hoek

Foreign Affairs Writer of the Irish Times

Kees Van Hoek, a native of The Hague and now an Irish citizen, has been a correspondent in London, Geneva and the United States. His first biography of Pius XII appeared in 1939. After much research and a private audience with the Pope last fall, Van Hoek has written in "Pope Pius XII, Priest and Statesman," a full and vivid description of the man and his career, from a delicate boy in Rome to supreme ruler of the Roman Catholic world. The biography is presented by The Washington Post during the present Holy Year in 24 daily installments.

CHAPTER XXIII—PRIVATE LIFE

Once Pius XII has gone into his library by 9:00 at night, he remains there generally until 1:00 in the morning. Here he prepares his speeches, works on pastoral letters and encyclicals, making notes in pencil, looking up personally all the quotations which he needs or verifying his facts. He does not like fountain pens. If he must write in ink he uses a steel-nib and violet ink. His slender, steep handwriting has all the upstrokes thin and all the downstrokes thick. Most of his writing he does on his white portable typewriter. In recent years, the rheumatism from which he suffers makes typing easier than writing.

Pius XII has a photographic memory. After he has drafted a speech, corrected it, neatly retyped it and read it once more, he knows it visually by heart. Once in Buenos Aires he addressed a great crowd in Spanish; the balcony from which he spoke was rather spacious and he paced it, fired by his fervor. As the speech was broadcast, the unfortunate technician had to follow from behind keeping the microphone in front of the orator with one arm. Cardinal Pacelli's friends afterward wondered how he had been able to keep to the train of his thoughts under such trying circumstance, and that in another language than his mother tongue. "I only saw the pages of the typescript unrolling before my eyes," was to Pacelli the simple explanation.

Preparing speeches and letters is his most pleasurable task. That is why he keeps it for the evening. (A complete edition of all the Pope's speeches in ever continuing volume is being published in Milan, every speech printed in the language in which it was delivered.) His only hobby is semantics, dictionaries his one indulgence. When he comes across a word that he does not quite know, he stores it in his memory and looks it up in the evening. Occasionally he plays some gramophone records or tunes into a concert on his radio.

He prefers Beethoven and Bach and is rather partial to Wagner. Very occasionally the famous Augusteo Philharmonic Orchestra of Rome comes to the Vatican to give a concert for which he invariably chooses the program himself. Now and then he sees a film. An unbeaten favorite so far is "Going My Way," with Bing Crosby and Barry Fitzgerald. He was astonished, but quite pleasantly to be told that the dapper little Irishman playing the old curate is himself a Protestant!

Trips Rare

DURING six long years, from October, 1939 to July, 1946, Pius XII left the Vatican only six times, in all, to drive into Rome for an hour, and that total record includes his state visit to the King and his inspection of the bombed sites. Only since 1946 has he resumed his annual holiday at Castel Gondolfo. The first fortnight there is then spent in a complete rest without visitors—which means that he can sit in the garden with his books and his papers—but after a fortnight the usual Vatican audiences are resumed at Castel Gondolfo.

Of the loneliness of his life I got a telling insight one day when I saw him set out for his summer holiday. More than a thousand Italian soldiers and police patrolled the 22 miles of road between the Vatican and the Castel. A bevy of Army motorcyclists preceded and surrounded the big black, specially built limousine (a present from the Catholics in the United States) with its SCV 1 number plates and the papal standard, two crossed keys underneath the Triple Crown. Behind it followed the cars of his suite, and police and army cars closed the rapidly moving column, all to secure the safety of the gray old priest who sat alone in the back.

No other Pope that one can remember has so completely captured public popularity. Yet no other Pope lives so reserved a life as Pius XII, who keeps himself much more to himself than any of his immediate predecessors. Pius X often had his family around him. He came of humble origin and one day a very old uncle of his, a shepherd, came to visit his nephew in the Vatican.

The uncle looked around in awe and then remarked approvingly to his nephew, the Pope, "Guiseppe, now that you have such a grand job, see that you keep it.". Benedict XV used to push the invalid chair of his ailing brother, the Admiral Della Chiesa, around his private garden. And every Sunday evening the Patti family visited Pius XI.

Nephews Arrive

PIUS XII's eldest brother, Francesco Pacelli, the famous Vatican lawyer, died in 1935. Of the brother's four sons, one died as a young Jesuit novice, Prince Carlo Pacelli (the princely title was conferred on the already noble family as the King of Italy's reward for the services rendered by Francesco Pacelli in the Lateran Treaty) is the Pope's eldest nephew and a high official of the Vatican City State—thus he sees him frequently. Both his younger nephews, the 42-year-old Prince Marc Antonio Pacelli, and the 40-year-old Prince Giulio Pacelli, are lawyers engaged in business and both are officers in their uncle's Noble Guard. The Pope has two sisters, one married to Dr. Mengarini, who was the head of a children's hospital; the other, Signora Rossignani, is the widow of a Vatican official, whose brother was until his death Cardinal Pacelli's private secretary.

The Pope has no close friends whom he sees, no intimates who call. Since the death of Cardinal Maglione he has been his own foreign secretary, and his closest collaborators are Monsignor Tardini and Monsignor Montini, who both see the Pope, generally together, every morning. They form a striking contrast. Swarthy, jovial, corpulent, extrovert Dominico Tardini is a conservative Roman in his middle 60s, a famous professor of theology.

Pale, lean-built, hollow-faced, introvert, fiftyish Giovanni Montini is a progressive who hails from industrial northern Italy. Their combined astuteness and shrewdness makes them a formidable team. They complement each other perfectly. The Pope listens to both of them attentively, then makes up his own mind. When he was Secretary of State, they were his closest collaborators. He esteems few men higher, yet only once in 10 years have they been invited to dine with the Pope.

Battle Lines Form Over Orange Juice

By John Crosby

THERE looms a financial struggle which threatens to eclipse the titanic battle between Jay Gould and Cornelius Vanderbilt for control of the Erie Railroad. It's already on us, and any widows and orphans had better take to the hills. The issue is orange juice.

The contestants are those two great financial typhoons—Bing Crosby and Arthur Godfrey. (A typhoon, junior, is a tycoon who sings. Then there's the buffoon, a tycoon who makes jokes, like Bob Hope.

(What's a poltroon, you ask? Well, a poltroon is an eight-gaited comedian who sings, dances, makes jokes, makes faces, juggles, does high-wire acts, and makes a terrible amount of money. There's only one living poltroon—Milton Berle.)

The issue was joined last week when Godfrey, director and stockholder of the Hi-V Corp., makers of orange juice concentrate, took to the air for his third separate television show. He teaches the ukulele and merchandises, by a striking coincidence, orange juice. Way ahead of him is Bing Crosby, director and heavy stockholder in Minute Maid, who sings and merchandises his brand of orange juice every morning.

Money Is an Insult

YEARS ago, back in the Paleozoic Age, when reptiles and radio comedians roamed the earth, a sponsor could procure the services of an entertainer by paying him, if you'll excuse the expression, money. Then there was a period, the Second Ice Age, when money was a joke. You offered a man money to appear on a radio program and be doubled up with laughter.

Today, money has degenerated even farther. Money is no joke today. Money is an insult. To offer money to a comedian is like making derogatory remarks about his ancestry.

The comedians want stock in the enterprise. Or better yet, just turn the plant over to him and pay him dividends. Little by little the entertainers are going to wind up owning everything like Rockefellers. The playboys of future generations won't be named Manville or Vanderbilt; they'll be Godfreys, Crosbys, Hopes and Jolsons.

Ukulele Lessons

THE latest addition to Mr. Godfrey's empire is a 15-minute ukulele lesson (WOIC, 7:45 p. m., E. S. T. Tuesday and Thursday.) Godfrey has threatened to teach the Nation how to play the ukulele for some time. He is now carrying out that threat.

The ukulele is a stringed instrument which passed into what I consider a well-deserved obscurity for excellent reasons 20 years or so ago. Godfrey's attempt to revive it strikes me as something like ordering the tide to recede. But you can't tell. There is a body of opinion harbored by Arthur's more worshipful admirers that if it had been Godfrey instead of Canute, the tide would have receded.

Anyhow, the noted capitalist strums his uke, explains basic finger movements, utters strong opinions about good ukes and bad ukes, and drinks a little Hi-V orange juice.

As a ukulele player, Arthur has 21 years of experience and I suppose he's pretty good. I wouldn't know. I'm tone deaf to the charms of a ukulele.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Are They Late for Last Season or Early For Next?

A friend of mine who works late at night and sleeps late in the morning was up unusually early the other day.

He was puttering around in the kitchen when the trash man made his rounds.

"Hey," called the householder, "wait up. I've got something for you."

From a desk drawer he extracted an envelope, and handed it to the man in overalls. "It's your Christmas present," he explained. "I don't get up this early very often, so I haven't had a chance to give it to you. But anyhow—better late than never. Merry Christmas!"

The trash man's grin was king-sized. "Well, thank you kindly, and merry Christmas," he replied. And then, not to be outdone in the belated greetings department, he added solemnly: "And a happy New Year, too."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Two fluffy gray female kittens, frisky and full of fun; also two baby squirrels who haven't opened their eyes yet." (Chestnut 6641.)

"Two 8-month-old male cats; one 18-month-old female cat; all gentle, good mousers, like outdoors." (Hudson 9456 before 9 a. m. or after 5 p. m.)

"Playful, healthy 2-month-old black-and-white kitten." (Juniper 7-7186.)

"Must dispose of three cute, healthy cocker spaniel puppies, 2 weeks old; must be bottle fed for a short time." (Shepherd 5824.)

SWING TUNE

Taking up the suggestion offered here recently, A. J. "Barney" Barnack of 618 I st. nw. has written the lyrics for a song. He has dedicated it to the pinch-hitters on everybody's favorite ball team who watch that third strike go by:

Oh, after the ball is over
It's too late to swing your bat;
One doesn't just dream of homers
And then let it go at that.
You've got to be in there swinging,
You can't win the game on hope;
So when that old ball's coming over
GET THE WOOD OFF YOUR SHOULDER YOU DOPE!

MISCELLANY

It doesn't happen often but sometimes traffic lights get out of phase because of mechanical difficulties. Currently the light at 15th and the Avenue se., which used to be synchronized with the one at Barney Circle, is operating on a schedule all its own . . . Hassa F. Shanker of 4403 14th st nw,, reports sighting this sign while driving through Pennsylvania along U. S. 30: "We're Diggin' and Scratchin' to Get This Thing Hatchin'." It turned out to be a new open air theater . . . Tom Wade, who used to do a bang-up job of newscasting on the local airwaves, writes from KMOX in St. Louis that he's homesick for Washington. Some alert radio exec ought to grab him . . . Consulting Engineer Harry Stevens of Leonardtown, Md., gets a chuckle out of a newspaper ad down there that offered for sale a "cocktail lounge with living quarters." Harry wonders whether the inveterate barflies find it more convenient that way . . . Nat Fan Mary Tankersley of 47 Wheatley st., Kensington, Md., offers to bet me that the Senators won't finish last again this year. That's my bet, too . . . When 4-year-old Ann Hutchison of 2901 78th ave. se., told her big sister, Jane, "I want to play with your diamond nose," it took Mama a while to figure out that Ann wasn't pronouncing "dominoes" too well . . . Patricia Newmark of 3215 Rowland pl. nw., tells me that the Hearst Play Center now has the piano it asked for in this space recently. Donor was John J. Ambrose of 435 5th st. ne . . . Theodore H. Freter of 10112 Gardiner ave., Silver Spring, Md., comes up with an interesting comment on my piece about George Washington and the silver dollar. Ted points out that when Washington was a young man, the first legal tender in this country was the Spanish milled dollar, or "piece-of-eight." That's why a quarter of a dollar is still known as "two bits." . . . Mrs. Frank L. Moon of 3578 Martha Custis dr., Alexandria, Va., wants to know whether we've heard the Don Ameche song: "I'll be Don Ameche in a Taxi, Honey" . . . With Perle Mesta back in town and the party season reaching new heights of brilliance, I guess I'd better get ready for a possible invitation, and send my turtle-neck sweater to the cleaners.

PERSONAL NOTES

Mrs. M. S. Ojalvo, Berwyn, Md.: Give-Aways are published just as quickly as I get them, and my only suggestion for those who are invariably "too late" when they call in the morning is this: When you're downtown in the evening, buy a copy of the "Bulldog" edition, which rolls at 8:30 p. m., and see if the next day's paper will list the sort of pet you want.

John P. Merrill, 525 Maple Ridge rd., Bethesda, Md.: The man who wrote that tortured sentence admits that he should have known better. Good catch.

Mrs. B. M. Holstein, 3341 Clay st. ne.: Thanks for the nice note.

HORSE SENSE

Poet Pop Grey complained in a recent jingle that he'd lost all his money on a bum tip on the races. Mrs. Mary N. Lazarus of 1929 33d st. se. is willing to shoulder the blame for the unwise investment, just so she can get a chance to give us what Damon Runyon used to call "the story that goes with it." It goes something like this:

"To the horse I said: 'Tell me, steed, whom should Pop play? Will you lose today's race?' and he answered me: 'Neigh.'

"I reproached him for losing but he munched his hay, and said: 'Gracious, ma'm, I didn't lose 'twas Pop Grey'."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Truman Seen Trapped by Politics

By Drew Pearson

Senator Lyndon Johnson, the likable young solon from Texas, has been confidently telling friends: "The President is going to sign the Kerr natural gas bill all right. Otherwise he will have some very sore Democratic Senators on his neck, and Harry Truman is just too smart to let this happen."

JOHNSON

The inference is that if the President does not go along with the Democratic natural gas Senators, some of them might just happen to swing over to the Republicans and play havoc with the presidential program.

This, in the words of the more discreet politicians, is called "log-rolling" in reverse, though in the words of the brutally frank, it is called legislation by "blackmail." Whatever you call it, many of the boys of Capitol Hill now figure they have Harry Truman where they want him and can put on the squeeze.

The first time they sensed this was when he changed his mind about vetoing the cotton-peanut acreage bill.

Smart Republicans, also sensing this, have already upped their betting on the congressional elections next November by 50 percent. They know that whenever a President becomes the creature of a Congress, rather than its leader, his party starts on the downgrade.

GOP Gets Cocky

The cotton-peanut acreage bill started out to be a good bill. Some such legislation was necessary in order to rectify injustices in acreage, especially cotton. But when the bill got into the House Agriculture Committee, the steam-roller cotton lobby managed to increase cotton allotments by one million to two million acres. This, despite the fact that the taxpayers have already shelled out $601,133,844 to pay for surplus cotton, which is many times the amount of the potato bill, though receiving a lot less publicity. Potatoes, for instance, cost Uncle Sam only $50 million this year.

Several Congressmen opposed this increase, including Cecil White of Fresno, Calif., once one of the biggest cotton growers in the central valley; also Stephen Pace of Georgia, who knows more about agriculture than most Congressmen, and W. R. Poage, from cotton-growing Texas. The Department of Agriculture also opposed any increase, said that cotton acreage should be 18 to 19 million acres.

But a coalition, led by Dixiecrat Tom Abernathy of Mississippi, overruled them, fixed the acreage at 22 to 23 million.

Once the cotton bloc had upped its acreage, Congressman Pace, who represents a great peanut-growing district, demanded the same treatment for the Georgia "goober."

Wheat Will Be Next

The Department of Agriculture argued that no more peanuts were necessary, but peanut acreage was increased by 100,000 acres anyway.

At this point, the wheat lobby also wanted to increase its acreage, but Congressman Cliff Hope of Kansas, ranking Republican, agreed to put wheat in another bill.

Meanwhile, last year's wheat carryover was 307 million bushels; the cotton carryover was 5,287,000 bales; the Commodity Credit Corporation, which handles these surpluses, has exhausted its funds, has had to remove price supports on pork and will need an additional borrowing authority of two billion dollars. Its total loss on price supports for the year ending June 30, 1949, was $254,762,000.

All this was why Truman's economic advisers urged him to veto the cotton-peanut acreage bill.

At first, the President was all set to veto. Then the biggest guns in the Democratic Party unlimbered for action, including some of his best friends.

Smart Lobbying

Organizer of the Key West pressure was Georgia's astute Senator Dick Russell. Though not being an intimate of Truman's, he was smart enough to stay in the background, let recognized Trumanites do the lobbying. Instead, Senators Lister Hill and John Sparkman of Alabama, Olin Johnston of South Carolina and Frank Graham of North Carolina, all Southern Democrats engaged in fighting the Dixiecrats, sent messages to Key West.

But most effective of all was Vice President Barkley, who made a phone call to Mr. Truman, in effect warned him:

"If you veto this bill, there will be an explosion that will rock the Democratic Party. A veto would torpedo the Fair Deal and play into the hands of the Dixiecrats and the Republicans."

The President was also told by various friends that veto of the cotton-peanut bill might cost him votes on Marshall Plan money, might lose support in puncturing the "Communist-bogey" set up by Senator McCarthy. On the other hand, increasing cotton and peanut acreage would buy solid Southern Democratic votes for the State Department and its foreign policy.

Mr. Truman listened, worried, signed the cotton-peanut bill.

GUARD YOUR HAIR in these 3 Danger Zones

Look at your hair carefully and you'll find that the damaging effects of dandruff scales are most evident in the 3 danger zones—(A) frontal point, (B) temples, and (C) crown. At these three weak points your hair particularly needs the reliable, time-tested Thomas treatment. Flowers Bloom and The Hecht Co. Fashions Blossom . . . at Georgetown Garden Preview

Beautiful fashions shared the limelight with beautiful flowers when Washington's popular Virginia Baker previewed the Georgetown Settlement House Garden Tour. The vivacious Virginia won all eyes in The Hecht Co. fashion of her choice . . . a side-slant navy gabardine suit, $75, that was as delightedly received as the blossoms themselves. As for her hat . . . it might have been plucked right from the garden . . . everyone said it was so pretty. Actually, Miss Baker picked it at The Hecht Co., where she finds so many flattering costumes for Washington's social functions. For beautiful flowers, do see the Georgetown Garden Tour. For beautiful fashions, do visit The Hecht Co.'s Famous Fashion Floors, now in full flower for Spring and Summer.

Popular with girls and teen-agers are the Sewing Classes conducted for the pupils of the Georgetown Settlement House. Other fine work being done by this Red Feather Agency is the Nursery School attended by 21 children from 3 to 5 years whose parents work or who especially need nursery school.

Mrs. Warren Ege (left), Chairman of the Georgetown Tour, explains to Virginia Baker (right) the Day Care Program of the Georgetown Settlement House. This service is available to 26 kindergarten and first-grade children who are called for at school, brought for hot lunch, nap, and supervised play until parents call for them.
